Germans Hurled Back by Allies at Thermopylae

Drive To Seize Historic Pass Repulsed with Loss to Nazis

Invaders Bring Up Heavy Artillery and Shell British and Greeks; Also Bomb Defenders

ATHENS, April 24 (AP) — Hurled back when they attempted to storm the historic pass of Thermopylae with infantry, the Germans today brought up the heaviest artillery yet used in the Balkan campaign and shelled the British-Greek positions.

Ambulance drivers returning from the front said the British losses around Thermopylae had been "extremely light" but they understood that a German attempt to force the pass with infantry cost the invaders heavily.

Meanwhile, German dive bombers, darting down in the rays of the setting sun tonight heavily attacked Piraeus, the port of Athens, bombing a ship which was taking on refugees.

Waves of Stukas Arrive

Air-raid sirens had been silent for most of the day and civil administration was functioning smoothly when three waves of Stuka dive-bombers roared over at dusk amid the crash of anti-aircraft fire.

They released their thunderous cargoes on Piraeus and then disappeared out to sea behind the Acropolis.

The heart of Athens trembled under the nearby explosions.

(Athens' radio station was broadcasting normally at 6 p. m., (E. S. T.) but transmission was almost unintelligible because of interference, presumably from a powerful French code station.

(NBC said the broadcast devoted only a few minutes to news items instead of the usual full fifteen minutes. The remainder of the broadcast was an epitaph on the fall of the Greek armies.)

The military governor of Athens ordered citizens of the capital to maintain order during "these exceptional moments the country is passing through."

Will Preserve Order

He declared all necessary steps had been taken to preserve order and safeguard the lives and property of Athens residents; that orders had been given for "arms to be used immediately against anybody attempting to disturb order."

The newspaper Ethnos said that Greeks "must stand hard blows as

Nazis Report Many British Ships Sunk

BERLIN, April 24 (AP)—Britain and her Allies have lost in the last three days 89,600 registered tons of ships intended for the flight of the English expeditionary force out of Greece, it was announced officially tonight.

A communique said Nazi bombers yesterday sank five transports and material ships amounting to 21,600 registered tons and damaged seriously ten larger ships.

Two auxiliary warships were reported sacrificed to the German attack, one British destroyer was heavily damaged by direct bomb hits and a British flying boat burst into flames, the communique added.

Strike Call Authorized In General Motors Units

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 24 — The United Automobile Workers-CIO announced tonight that local unions in forty-one of the sixty-one General Motor plants in which balloting is being conducted had voted overwhelmingly to authorize a strike call. Midnight was set as the deadline for the completion of strike votes in the remaining twenty plants affected.

Walter P. Reuther, director of the UAW-CIO, organization in the corporation's plants, made the announcement. He reiterated a previous pledge that defense workers would remain on their jobs should a strike be called.

Calls It "Half Strike"

Earlier, General Motors President C. E. Wilson told a press conference the union's plan would constitute a "half-strike" and added:

"As far as I know, there has never been a half-strike called."

Wilson said it would be "impossible to strike in the sixty-one plants without affecting defense production." Defense production, he said, could not succesfully be isolated from general production in case of a tie-up.

The executive admitted there was "danger of a strike at any time" affecting perhaps 160,000 employes, but declared flatly that the corporation would not "underwrite the union by giving it a closed shop," as the union demands.

On the issue of wages Wilson declared that "our wages are already as high or higher than wages in the automobile industry as a whole. There is no justification for an increase in the wage rate at this time."

Harmful to Competition

He added that a wage increase would make it difficult for General Motors to compete with other firms for defense contracts.

Sharp Debate on Food Bill Marks O'Conor Hearing

Governor Also Considers Protests on Other Legislation

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 24 (AP)—Sharp debate on legislation to prohibit interference with transportation of perishable food products in intrastate commerce headlined proceedings at a series of "protest hearings" conducted by Governor O'Conor on controversial bills.

Discussion on fifteen measures consumed more than seven hours and forced O'Conor to postpone until Tuesday hearing opponents and proponents of three major items — the state administration's conservation measure, the anti-sabotage bill and the Baltimore-Washington superhighway proposal.

The hearings, which packed the House chamber with taxpayers and legislators, began at 11 a. m. and continued until 6:45 p. m. They were then recessed until 8 p. m. when proponents and opponents of the proposed Allegany county bond issue bill for school construction were heard.

Food Products Bill Up

Labor organizations opposed and agricultural groups favored a bill which would prohibit the malicious interference with the production, transportation, delivery, acceptance or distribution of perishable food products in intrastate commerce.

Opponents urged O'Conor to veto the measure, asserting there was no need for such legislation. They said it would harm labor's rights and that its terms might be misconstrued.

Agriculturists, however, argued that farmers wanted an assurance that the free flow of food products would not be interrupted. They contended it did not take away any of labor's rights but was aimed at saboteurs.

Pope Pius in Third Peace Appeal Calls for May Prayer Crusade

VATICAN CITY, April 24 (AP) — Pope Pius XII called today for a Maytime crusade of prayer for peace, especially by the children of the Catholic world.

It was the third appeal for peace of His Pontificate.

In a letter to the papal secretary of state, Louigi Cardinal Maglione, the Holy Father exhorted the faithful to lead their children in ever-increasing numbers to the shrine of the Blessed Virgin, there to pray:

". . . That wherever covetous creed now holds sway, there the reign of love may soon prevail; That where now the spirit of reprisal persists, forgiveness may be exercised: That for discord among men there may be substituted loving harmony which reconciles and unites them, and, finally, that where now deep enmities are aroused, unhappily provoking widespread disorder, there may be effected new ties of friendship which will calm the hearts of men and bring to the universe the tranquility of an order founded on justice.

"Let these little ones . . . ask . . . that the duration of this awful misfortune be brief. . ." he pleaded, "and that therefore there may

Imperial Forces Battle To Save City of Athens

Fight at Close Quarters as Germans Increase Tempo of Attack

[By The Associated Press]

LONDON, April 24 (AP)—Battered but grim British imperial forces fought the German war machine at close quarters tonight—apparently around the historic pass of Thermopylae—to bar the way to Athens against an onslaught expected to grow at any moment.

The British public, warned with progressive insistence for several days to expect reverses in Greece, hoped anxiously that its embattled troops, pressed between the Germans and the sea, could be saved to fight again.

Details of the fighting were meager, but an authoritative British source said the British were holding their positions at Thermopylae, where Leonidas and his Spartans died in battle with the Persians 2421 years ago.

Flank Not Turned

This source said there was no basis for reports that the British flank had been turned and it was "very doubtful" if the Germans had taken the island of Lemnos.

(The German high command said its forces had succeeded in "breaking into" the British positions in Thermopylae, 100 miles north of Athens, but did not repeat the assertion of authorized German sources Wednesday that the British had been annihilated and a break-through accomplished.

(The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung asserted, however, that the Germans were in control of the railway and were approaching Athens via Thebes, which is southeast of Thermopylae and only about thirty-five miles northwest of Athens.)

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who gravely exhorted Parlia-

Father Kills Three Children and Self

WHEELING, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—An unemployed foundry worker, who had been under the observation of a doctor for a month, shot his three young children to death today and then committed suicide, Coroner John Gaynor said.

Gaynor said the bodies of Herbert L. Schneid, 31; Regina, 12, Donald, 10 and Shirley, 7, were found in a room of their home by a neighbor who had brought them some soup for their dinner.

Mrs. Schneid and a younger child were visiting relatives in another section of the city when the shooting occurred, Gaynor reported.

A pistol was found near the body of the father, the official added.

Death struck while one child was working a crossword puzzle, another was writing on a school slate and a third was attempting to hide behind a radio.

Gaynor said the father had been ill for some time.

Germans Report Drive on Athens By Way of Thebes

Say They Will Occupy City without Harming Fine Monuments

[By The Associated Press]

BERLIN, April 24—The German army was described in the Berlin press tonight as pushing on methodically towards Athens "by way of Thebes," about thirty-five miles northwest of the capital, with orders to occupy it without harming its ancient and splendid monuments.

These reports, not bearing the cachet of the high command, said the highways and railways to the north of Thebes were in full control of the grey-uniformed Wehrmacht.

The high command's daily bulletin, however, said merely that at Thermopylae, the historic pass 100 miles north of Athens, "we succeeded in breaking into positions which were situated in especially favorable terrain." Thus the high command did not confirm the report by other German sources of yesterday, and implied in the Thebes report of today, that the Nazi army had broken through Thermopylae and opened the gate to Athens.

Report Capture of Tanks

The command bulletin did say that thirty British tanks were taken between Lamia and Larisa, north of the pass, and DNB, the German news agency, declared that at one large British camp hundreds of tanks and munition trucks and many three-inch guns had been captured, as well as several thousand British soldiers.

There was no official announcement as to how the high command proposed to capture Athens without damaging the classic relics of antiquity, although one newspaper, the Deutsch Allgemeine Zeitung, remarked: "The Acropolis stands in the midst of war, spared by the German air force."

No such scruples protected the Athenian port of Piraeus, and every military dispatch indicated that Stukas were droning over it like angry hornets.

Bomb Many Ships

"Make the British retreat as costly as possible," remained the order to the air force, and it continued to bomb harbors and all manner of ships moving along the Greek east and south coasts.

The newspaper dispatches, however, indicated some vessels were making a getaway, one report describing the flight of British civilians on small fishing vessels to the Turkish coast.

All responsible quarters in Berlin regarded "the Greek incident" as liquidated and the impression prevailed that neither the Greeks nor the British would offer any noteworthy opposition on the peninsula of Peloponnesus, below Athens.

"What Next," Germans Ask

Most Germans already were speculating on "what next?" and most of these speculations revolved about the near east, northern Africa,

Martin Company Facing CIO Threat To Close It

BALTIMORE, April 24 (AP)—Organizers in the aircraft division of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO) voted tonight to call a general strike of CIO workers at the Glenn L. Martin Company, where planes are being made for the United States and Great Britain.

The strike vote was taken by shop stewards and committeemen meeting with Frank J. Bender, state CIO director. It followed a walkout Wednesday night by twenty-seven workers who had demanded a ten-cents an hour wage increase, which the company refused.

Union officials said the strike call was effective immediately and Bender added that "the union will picket the plant and call out workers until we close it down. It may take some time but we will do it." Ratification, they said, is not necessary by the rank and file.

The union said that 3,200 of the approximately 17,000 Martin employes are CIO members.

President Glenn L. Martin said the company "has received no notification of any decision on the part of the CIO to call a strike" and added "we still regard the absence of twenty-seven men as no indication of a strike."

Union leaders asserted the walkout had restricted operations on each of three shifts and in most departments of the plant, but Martin said "there have been no disturbances and work is going on as usual tonight."

Bender said charges would be filed with the NLRB alleging that the company made "unwarranted discharges and discriminations against workers" and that the "middle river aeronautical association is an out-and-out company-inspired union."

Picket lines, temporarily abandoned to permit pickets to attend the meeting, were re-established later.

Cannot Allow Our Goods To Be Sunk, Knox Asserts in New York Speech

"Having Gone Thus Far We Can Only Go on", Secretary of Navy Tells Newspaper Publishers

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—Secretary Knox tonight coupled a statement that "we can not allow our goods to be sunk in the Atlantic—we shall be beaten if they do," with the assertion that "we must make good our promise to give aid to Britain."

"Hitler can not allow our war supplies and food to reach England; he will be defeated if they do," the navy chief said in a speech prepared for the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and a nation-wide MBS broadcast.

After making an "utterly realistic and objective" survey of the world situation and touching on the nation's foreign and defense policies, Knox added: "having gone thus far, we can only go on."

German Warships Badly Damaged, British Declare

Gneisenau and Scharnhorst Reported To Have Been Heavily Bombed

LONDON, April 24. (AP)—British bombers attacked the 26,000-ton German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst at Brest last night for the twelfth time, and the British Press Association said tonight these steady blows were believed to have put the Scharnhorst out of action "for some months."

"The Gneisenau is understood to have been hit amidships in an earlier raid," the news agency said.

In reporting these fresh attacks on the two sea raiders the air ministry did not claim direct hits. Full observation of the bomb explosions was impossible, it said.

Fires were started in the dock areas of Brest and at Le Havre, however, and direct hits were reported registered on an important power station at Ibbenburen, in northwest Germany, in a daylight raid.

The Dutch island of Terschelling was attacked. Nazi troops were machine-gunned, and three German ships off the coast were hit and probably destroyed, the ministry's communique related.

One bomber was lost in the daylight operations.

Northward across the channel from Brest, Nazi bombs heaped more damage and death on the port city of Plymouth, England, which was attacked for the third straight night. At least twelve persons were killed.

But the British said the bombing of Plymouth and other English ports had not closed them to shipments of American supplies. There is no British port where ships cannot get in or out, an authoritative source said.

Mediation Board And Coal Miners To Meet Today

Prospects of Early Resumption of Work Seem Remote

[By The Associated Press]

The Defense Mediation Board will meet with soft coal mine operators and union representatives today (Friday) in an effort to end the protracted mining stoppage which already is crippling defnse production.

The board ordered a hearing in Washington this morning within a few hours after the dispute was turned over to it yesterday by secretary Perkins. At the same time, the war department made public a summary of the effects of the fuel shortage on armament production. It said there had been "drastic" curtailment in the output of ammonia (used in making explosives), steel, wool and cotton textiles, and other products.

In another report, the Bureau of Mines said that only about two weeks of soft coal was now above ground.

Atmosphere Clouded

The atmosphere in the coal wage dispute, as the Defense Mediation Board intervened, gave little reason to hope for an early agreement returning the 400,000 idle miners to mines shut down since April 1.

Help in Shortest Time Necessary, Hull Asserts in Plea to Nation

Secretary of State Says United States Is Included in Axis Plans for World Domination

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull declared tonight that "ways must be found" to insure that aid to Britain reaches its destination "in the shortest of time and in maximum quantity."

In a major address before the American Society of International Law, Secretary Hull proposed no specific measures for guarding vital supplies crossing the Atlantic.

Calls on All Americans

He called on the "130 millions of Americans to rise in our might and proceed as one man in the herculean task of equipping this nation to the fullest for its self defense."

Asserting that the United States was included in the plans of Axis powers for world domination, Secretary Hull said:

"Yes, it makes a difference who wins — the difference whether we stand with our backs to the wall with the other four continents against us and the high seas lost, alone defending the last free territories on earth — or whether we keep our place in an orderly world."

Warning that "time is pressing" and "the struggle may continue for a long time," Hull declared his absolute faith in the ultimate triumph of freedom, justice and security.

He cautioned Americans at the same time against becoming too easily discouraged by news that is "temporarily unfavorable" and said this country owes its place in history to the fact that "the people become more resolute and determined as danger and difficulty increase."

American Safety at Stake

"Events have shown beyond possible question," he declared, "that the safety of this hemisphere and of this country calls for resistance

Schenck Sentenced to 3 Years in Jail and To Pay Fine of $20,000

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP) — Joseph M. Schenck, board chairman of the 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation, today was sentenced to three years in federal penitentiary and fined $20,000 on conviction of evading $253,692.62 in federal income taxes during 1935 and 1936.

The 59-year-old Russian-born former druggist stared at the floor as his counsel minimized the charges, related his fabulous philanthrophies and predicted that whatever the sentence Schenck would "take it gracefully — as he has taken everything in his life."

"Schenck is amply able to pay," defense counsel Harold Corbin said, brushing a tear from his cheek. "He has always been willing to pay. Anything the board of Tax Appeals decides is due will be thoroughly and promptly met."

Corbin referred to a pending action in which Schenck contends that instead of owing the government money, the government owes him $165,000 in tax overpayments.

Schenck, sadder and more weary than he had been at any time during the seven-week trial, sat with half-closed eyes as U. S. Attorney Mathias Correa advised Judge Gro-

Private Industry Not Removing Men From WPA Rolls

Not Skilled Workers, State Administrator Williar Declares

BALTIMORE, April 24 (AP)—Private industry is unable to absorb persons released from WPA rolls at the current rate of reduction, State Administrator Harry D. Williar said today.

Williar said that about 200 persons had been dismissed in January, 500 in February and 1,000 in March in accordance with the ruling to release all those who had been on the rolls eighteen months.

Another 1,000 persons will be released in April, he estimated. He said about seventy-five per cent of those released would apply for reinstatement, but that few of them could be reemployed because of reduced funds and quotas.

Mostly Unskilled Men

The reason so many will seek reinstatement on WPA rolls, Williar said, is that few of them have the skills required by private industry. He added that about ninety per cent of the persons on WPA rolls in Maryland are in the unskilled or semi-skilled class.

Since last July, the administrator said, vocational training schools for these persons have been in operation, and sixty-two per cent of the trainees have obtained jobs in private industry.

1,000 on Waiting List

The state WPA waiting list is now about 1,000, but that figure is expected to increase this month and next, when those dismissed because of eighteen months' employment become eligible for reinstatement, Williar continued.

Williar said he expected difficulty to arise because the quotas and funds are diminishing on a sliding scale monthly.

More than fifty per cent of all Maryland's WPA workers, he said, are on national defense projects, including construction at army and navy reservations, at airports, and access road construction.

Mediation Board

L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers (CIO), asserted in New York that intervention of the board could only mean "further delay" in arrival at a settlement.

They blamed the present stalemate on the third party in the tri-cornered negotiations—the southern operators. The northern mines have agreed to the proposal by the united mine workers for a $7 a day wage throughout the industry. The southerners objected, however, to giving up the wage differential they have had under the previous scale of $5.60 in the south and $6 in the north.

Mediators Named

The panel to consider the case is composed of William H. Davis, vice-chairman of the board, representing the public; Walter Teagle, an executive of the Standard Oil Company, representing employers, and Clinton Golden, a regional director of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee (CIO, representing labor.

Two major concerns announced wage increases during the day. Crucible steel corporation increased hourly rated employes 10 cents an hour in line with recent action of other large steel companies. Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company said an agreement reached with the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers provided for a minimum increase of $4 weekly for 45,000 workers in twenty-four plants.

Congress Delays Action

In Congress, meantime, leaders indicated a disposition to delay for the time being consideration of legislation to restrict strikes. The House Rules committee, which usually acts on a bill within an hour or two, held its second day of hearings on a measure by Rep. Vinson (D-Ga) to require a twenty-five-day "cooling off" period between notice of intention to strike and the effective date.

Chairman Norton (D-NJ) of the House Labor committee asked that the measure be pigeon-holed on the grounds that it was "anti-labor." On the other hand, Rep. Drewery (D-Va) contended that the bill was the "easiest, simplest" way for Congress to meet demands that it "do something."

Imperial Forces

ment Tuesday to show "poise and steadiness," once more staved off the growing demand that the full story be told.

Again he pleaded it was for the sake of the soldiers in "close contact" with the foe, but hinted that he might have time for a broadcast in a few days.

Surface signs thus far indicate that Churchill can weather any political storm which arises from this military failure—regardless of what happened or will happen.

(The fact the British censorship passed so flat a phrase as "this military failure" is perhaps significant of the British attitude.)

Australia's Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies is in a more precarious position, since the death of one supporter has erased his majority and apparently put his government at the mercy of the labor opposition.

British Reinforcements Arrive In Singapore Prepared To Fight

SINGAPORE, April 24 (AP)—Formidable new reinforcements of men and machines landed at this British far eastern stronghold today, strengthening the defense of Singapore and the Malay peninsula against a surprise thrust by land or sea.

They came in a big transport as reinforcements for the main body of the Australian Imperial force which arrived here February 18. This time the public welcome was less colorful and not so noisy; the brass bands and singing were missing.

But Australian-manned bombing planes roared out to meet the convoy 100 miles at sea and circled overhead as the big troop-carrying liner steamed through a protective minefield and past the powerful harbor fortresses to the naval base dock.

Quartered on Peninsula

The new contingents included transport services and other auxiliaries. With the troops already here—said by some observers to be the forerunners of an army of 90,000—they will take up positions in already prepared stations on the Malayan peninsula.

Lieut. Gen. L. V. Bond, commander of British land forces in Malaya, said that the defense of the peninsula in terms of men, guns and planes was nearing its peak.

Other army contingents of Australians and Indians, and a whole shipload of the latest type anti-aircraft artillery from Britain and warplanes from the United States have ensured, he explained, a closely coordinated striking power.

The general said the additional anti-aircraft guns would make possible a more concentrated barrage than at many places in England.

Danger From the Sea

As for possibilities of attack from the sea, he conceded there were numerous possible landing points on Malaya's eastern or China sea coast, despite swamps and reefs. But, he emphasized, neither artillery nor armored forces could break a path through the dense, almost roadless jungles, while transports and men on the shallow beaches would be easy targets for British bombers.

Notwithstanding all this, "Japan would be a dangerous enemy," the general said, but added he did not believe a Japanese attack would be "catastrophic."

"There is no question," he said, "but that the United States fleet is the most powerful factor deterring the activity of an enemy of Britain in the Pacific area."

Cannot Allow Our

gress we have made to our present posture.

"Proclaiming, as we do, our faith in the ultimate victory of good over evil," he went on, "our devotion to the cause of human liberty, our century and a half of the pursuit of justice between men on terms of equality, we can no longer occupy the immoral and craven position of asking others to make all the sacrifice for this victory which we recognize as essential to us. Our manhood and our self-respect demand that we shall assume our part of the burden."

Secretary Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, told his fellow craftsmen that "because I am a newspaper man as well as a public official, may I say that I have a very lively interest in the establishment and maintenance of the friendliest and frankest possible relationship between the navy and the press?"

Against Censorship

"As a newspaperman who has known no other occupation, and who feels a great sense of pride in his profession, I am utterly and unreservedly opposed to any form of compulsory censorship, especially in time of peace."

The secretary suggested that in time of peace, necessarily, "there must be vital military information, which no loyal and patriotic newspaperman would want to publish anyway, withheld from publication; but even in time of war, with this single qualification, I am opposed to censorship."

Exact Meaning Vague

Whether this meant the much-talked-of naval convoys for British merchant ships; the naval "patrol" 1,000 miles out in the Atlantic indicated by Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York in a speech in Canada yesterday, or something more far-reaching than either of these was a subject of wide speculation in the capital tonight.

In some quarters, it was thought that Knox might be advocating a re-assertion of American rights to "freedom of the seas"—the right of American merchant ships to take supplies anywhere and protect them with whatever force was necessary.

One purpose of the two speeches seemed clear—to arouse the American people to the gravity of the international situation as seen by the administration. President Roosevelt said last week the people were not fully aware of the dangers to this country.

The reaction of the country and Congress to the strong pronouncements of the secretaries of state and the navy was counted an important factor in determining the next administration moves.

High Schools To Aid In Providing Labor

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 24 (AP)—Hagerstown and Washington county High schools will be asked May 15 to help register graduates who will be available for defense jobs, the local office of the Maryland State Employment Service reported today.

The step is being taken in view of the "growing shortage of labor in Washington county," the office said. The information will be sought by interviewers.

Answers to three main questions will be sought:

Applicant's choice of vocation in order of occupational preference.

Whether he will accept vocational training for employment in national defense industries after graduation.

If the applicant is to be employed immediately after graduation, the name of the employer, and the occupation.

San Diego Strike Comes to an End

SAN DIEGO, Calif., April 24 (AP)—A strike of 1,800 AFL construction workers which halted work on a $4,000,000 navy defense project ended today with acceptance by the unions of a compromise wage proposal drafted by the navy department.

The strike lasted only eight hours and affected only the two 600-unit naval housing projects near the destroyer base and the naval training station.

The eleventh naval district, which announced the settlement, said the workers in four crafts—electricians, roofers, painters and floor-layers—would receive a wage boost of approximately ten per cent, beginning tomorrow.

The navy rejected, however, a demand of the San Diego Building Trades Council that the pay increase be made retroactive to January when the prevailing wage scale was established for other crafts on defense projects.

The settlement proposal originally called for establishment of the new scale for the four crafts on May 1.

Deny British Are Fleeing from Greece

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—A British radio commentator declared tonight that "not one British soldier has re-embarked from Greece."

The broadcast was heard by CBS.

"Moreover," he added, "the Allied lines though in retreat have held firm and still stand."

The commentator pointed out that the Germans and Italians are boasting that the British already are embarking in flight from Greece.

The Germans have reported numerous bombings of ships packed with British soldiers fleeing Greece.

Dog Comes To Aid Of Company G

FORT BENNING, Ga., April 24 (AP)—The eighth infantry was having boxing bouts and the standard bearer of Company G was being batted about.

This irked the company mascot, a Boston bull pup, and he leaped into the ring, growling and snapping.

'Round and 'round went boxers, referee and pup until the bout was halted while Company G buddies explained matters to the dog and removed him from the ring.

Last Shot of Civil War Fired in Georgia

DECATUR, Ga., April 24 (AP)—Digging in his yard in this Atlanta suburb, Floyd Walden found a nine-inch-long shell of Civil war vintage.

Curious, he put the projectile back in the hole, heaped straw and kindling about it and piled logs on top.

Walden touched a match to the heap and soon the last shot in the battle of Atlanta sent logs flying skyward.

Lindbergh Wins Praise in Berlin

Described as Real American of Swedish Descent by Editor

BERLIN, April 24 (AP)—The important German newspaper Fremdenblatt, commenting on last night's "America First" rally in New York, described Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh tonight as "a real American of Swedish descent out of the Middle West."

It said he was "not a war opponent through emotionalism but through devoted love of his country."

This was part of an article by Adolf Halfeld, who often strikes a keynote for German editors, headlined "America First."

It said Germany had no illusions about anti-German expressions in the United States from Atlantic to Pacific, explaining that Americans know the danger of invasion of their country is not from Germany "but from the increasing British influence on the American continent."

LOS ANGELES, April 24 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt told newsman today that Col. Charles A. Lilbergh "seems to have a strange lack of confidence in his own people."

"He gives us very little credit for much ability, much courage, or much common sense," she commented on Lindbergh's New York speech. "We ought to be able to decide for ourselves what we can do and when and how we will do it."

Sharp Debate

Kimble Defends Unions

"It would have been better for the legislature to have passed a law prohibiting labor unions than to come in the back door and say labor organizations can organize but that they can't make use of the organization".

Among other opponents were Joseph McCurdy and Jacob Edelman, American Federation of Labor representatives; Senator John Callan (Balto) and several Congress of Industrial Organization delegates.

Delegate John Clark (D-Harford), one of the bill's sponsors, asserted: "There is nothing in this bill to hurt anyone who has the nation's interest at heart."

Not Like Work Stoppage

He said the stoppage of food products in intrastate commerce was not like work stoppages at automobile factories. The food, "representing the farmer's entire investment and work, is no longer edible after its distribution is tied up," Clark declared.

Before the night recess, O'Conor heard Montgomery county tax-payers urge the veto of a measure which would give Montgomery county a monopoly in the sale of beer within its borders. Delegate James W. Gill (D-Montgomery) asked the governor to sign the bill.

Some of the bills on which earlier hearings were held would license coin machines showing motion pictures and increase license fees for motion picture films; exempt from taxation used automobiles taken in trade by auto dealers, regulate the business of retail installment sales and license finance companies involved in such business.

14 Missing in Big Colombia Plane

First of 28-Ton Tanks Delivered To the U. S. Army

Giant Machines Carry Big Guns as Well as Machine Guns

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—The army received its first twenty-eight-ton tanks today, while word came from the war department that it would be ready to house 1,418,000 men by summer and had plans to arm a fighting force of two million.

Initial deliveries of the big mobile land forts were made to the army at Detroit and Eddystone, Pa. They include among their armament 75-millimeter field cannon, 37-millimeter guns for use against other tanks or airplanes and a battery of machine guns.

Quarters for 1,500,000

A general staff officer, Colonel Stephen J. Chamberlin, told a congressional committee that quarters would be ready for all of the 1,418,000 men expected to be in the army by July 1. Accommodations for 1,150,000 now are available, he said.

Under the questioning of a Senate defense investigating committee, Chamberlin discusseld the comparatiyvely permanent character of present army housing, then added:

"We don't know whether we will be demobilized in five or thirty years."

Huge Plant Expansion

The capital heard that the army had drawn up a new $1,500,000,000 program of defense plant construction and expansion, and was prepared to negotiate contracts within two weeks if presidential approval was given.

The new program would:

Make it impossible to give full combat equipment to an army of 2,000,000 men and supply basic items for a force twice that size.

Expand the capacity of American plants to turn out war material for Britain, including long range bombers needed for offensive action.

Henderson Hopes To Prevent Inflation

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—Leon Henderson, price adminstrator, said tonight the government was pursuing a three-point program designed to prevent inflation—increasing supply, instituting some price controls and curtailing consumer purchasing power by higher taxes and sale of bonds.

Mandatory price ceilings are being avoided as far as possible, Henderson said in an address prepared for broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting System.

"We have the power, but if more is needed we are prepared to ask Congress for additional legislation."

If there are shortages of some consumer goods, the tendency will be for prices to rise, Henderson said, but this will be counteracted in part by higher taxes and selling bonds to the public.

The "basic approach" to the problem of maintaining price stability, Henderson said, "is to increase the supply of goods."

Beer Monopoly Is Strongly Scored

Montgomery County Measure Flayed at Hearing Before O'Conor

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 24 (AP)—Opponents of a bill giving Montgomery county a monopoly in the sale of beer asserted tonight it was a step toward Socialism while proponents argued that the measure was the "will of the Montgomery county taxpayers."

They expressed their views of the measure passed by the legislature at a hearing conducted by Governor O'Conor. He did not announce when he would take final action on the proposal.

Opponents, whose spokesman was James Pugh, said it would be "unfair and unjust" for the county to "confiscate" the business of about a half dozen county beer wholesalers.

They pointed out that the Brookings Institution's report advocated that the County Liquor Control Board be abolished.

Delegate James W. Gill (D-Montgomery county), one of the proponents, asserted:

"It is not the will of the people of Montgomery county that the bill be vetoed."

He said that if the measure became law the County Liquor Control Board's profit would be increased by about $75,000 a year.

Opponents said that if the County Liquor Control Board were given a monopoly over beer sales they didn't believe county taxes would be reduced.

Germans Report

where the German army stands at the Egyptian border, and Spain. There was, however, no authentic word from responsible leaders.

The German press watched intently and approvingly the development of what was termed anti-war feeling in the United States. Many papers were saying that "American common sense is asserting itself."

The magazine Berlin-Rome-Tokyo, which usually reflects policies of the tripartite partners with accuracy, said in a vigorous article that the Yugoslav collapse had "pushed Roosevelt out of Europe."

they always have in such circumstances . . . in addition to that the people must be united and disciplined as they will to overcome difficulties."

Planes Defeated Greeks

A man who participated in the Epirus fighting before that army surrendered declared German planes were the decisive factor in the struggle.

"We were bombed continuously every daylight hour," he said.

"We never really got a chanc to establish new positions nad communications."

Four Face Inquiry In Drowning Tragedy

BALTIMORE, April 24 (AP)—Four persons were ordered today to report for a police inquiry into the death of Charles Schipferling, 36, of Baltimore, who was drowned in Baltimore harbor when he fell from a motor launch.

Earnest Williams of Delano, N. J., one of a party of four who were Schipferling's guests aboard the launch last night, said he heard Schipferling yell as he plunged over the side.

Leaping in after him, Williams said he reached the man and held him for a time but was forced to let him go in order to save himself.

Others in the party were Miss Alverta Talbott, Baltimore, Charles Jenkins, Baltimore and Harry Kries, Pittsburgh.

Police were unable to locate the body.

Two Things of Concern For Western Marylanders

TWO POINTS stressed in his address at the dedicatory ceremonies at Beall high school at Frostburg by Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, have especial application to the citizens of Western Maryland at this time.

One was that citizens should take more interest in the affairs of their government. As Dr. Byrd said, the average citizen is not doing this now, and so many things are in the making that directly affect the future of Americans as the result of world war conditions that more than ordinary attention should be given them. Here again we may appropriately make use of the oft-repeated quotation that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

The other point was that citizens should not regard every act of their government as sacrosanct. They owe it to their patriotism to help guide their lawmakers in Congress and in state legislative bodies in the grave tasks confronting them in the present emergency. Complacency and neglect on their part will naturally be reflected in the actions of their representatives. Conditions both domestic and international are of such grave importance that constructive help is constantly needed, and it will be welcomed by those charged with the duty of framing legislation to cope with them.

These points are particularly applicable here in the Western Maryland region at this time by reason of the fact that its people are being called upon to choose a new representative in the national House of Representatives.

The outstanding necessity in this will be greater interest in this duty on the part of all voters. Such increased interest will prompt more persons to go to the polls at the special election to be held May 27 and express their wishes with regard to their representation in the House. Usually in a bye-election the turnout of voters in comparatively small, and all too frequently the results of the voting are disappointing to a majority of the electorate, on whom the chief blame rests for such results by reason of their own indifference and neglect. It is highly important that there be a large vote out at this special election.

The need for constructive, loyal opposition in the national legislature is quite plain and the people should see to it that this is provided. Administration forces in Congress are top-heavy, and no need obtains for adding to them. It would be in accord with the theory of checks and balances prescribed in the national constitution to provide strength in the congressional makeup where it is most needed.

Western Marylanders should give heed to these two points with respect to the congressional campaign that is now under way.

The Alarming Scarcity Of Rich Democrats

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT at his press conference the other day undertook to enjoy himself hugely and, only incidentally, of course, to take a dig at Republicans. Asked if Harry Hopkins in his new post of administrator of the Lend-Lease act would be dollar-a-year-man, the president replied, "Good gracious, NO," or words to that effect. He said Harry was a Democrat. (This was news, for once Hopkins was a registered Socialist.)

Mr. Roosevelt with a chuckle recounted how several days previously Defense Production Chief Knudsen brought him a list of prospective dollar-a-year-men—and they were all Republicans. Knudsen, said the president, explained he could find no Democrats available as dollar-a-year men. The explanation, he asserted, was that only the rich could be dollar-a-year men and there were no rich Democrats.

But it seems to us there is another explanation. There are many rich Democrats, as we all know. Democrats always have seemed to be interested in public service only when it meant money to them. They may not be interested in dollar-a-year jobs for the reason that they want the fat, juicy $10,000 a year jobs. Ever since Andrew Jackson's day, they have been payroll boys.

Thermopylae Pass Is Different Now

ANCIENT HISTORY is revived in the presence of vastly outnumbered Greek and British troops at the famous pass of Thermopylae and their desperate effort to hold it. But conditions as to terrain as well as armament are vastly different from what they were when the pass originally came into historic fame.

When Leonidas, the Spartan king, held the pass betwixt Mount Oeta and the sea against the Persian host in 480 B. C., and made a name for himself even bigger than that of Horatius-on-the-bridge, the pass was only fourteen yards wide. Since then, sediment has filled in the shallow sea and the pass is as much as three miles wide.

Even for the large number of men and mechanized equipment involved in this war, such a pass would be comparatively open.

The ancient invasion that Leonidas tried to stem had startling similarities to the present invasion.

It was conducted by Xerxes, the Persian emperor, who spent three years making preparations and softening up nearby Greek states. Then with a column of a million or more men, paralleled by hundreds of warships, he moved across Macedonia, pazt Salonika and down toward Athens.

Sparta had to have the help of Athens and its efficient fleet to defend the peninsula north of the Gulf of Corinth. As it was Sparta sent an expedition to the Mount Olympus region to make a first stand, but this was outflanked and forced to withdraw.

Then Leonidas and 7,000 men went to Thermopylae, so named because of hot springs.

But two things happened. First, a Greek traitor led Persian shock troops over a mountain path to Leonidas's rear. Second, Leonidas sent away most of his force on a mission not quite apparent.

That leaves his generalship in doubt, though not his courage. Leonidas might have fled even then, but he and the 300 stayed on and were cut down to a man.

It was sea power than finally decided the war and herein the present struggle may be so decided. The Persians laid Athens waste and were plowing right ahead when a wily Athenian leader sent Xerxes private word that the Greek fleet was about to flee. The Persians fell for the trap, attacked the Greeks under a disadvantage, and lost 200 ships. Xerxes then sped back to Asia.

An Interesting and Fruitful Pastime

BIG INTEREST has been given to the hobby pastime by the excellent show that has been carried on this week under the auspices of the Western Maryland Coin Club at Emmanuel Episcopal parish house. Those who have not had the opportunity of viewing the numerous exhibits there as yet should by all means get around to it before it is closed. It is the first undertaking of the kind ever attempted here, and the interest aroused by it augurs favorably for its establishment as a permanent annual institution.

This newspaper has frequently commented upon the subject of hobbies, which it believes is a worth-while thing for every person in that it furnishes ways and means of occupying hours otherwise ill-spent or wasted, stimulates the creative ability and furnishes enjoyment. Incidentally it has proved profitable in various other ways, one of these being in the development of an authoritative standing.

The hobby penchant is spreading into many novel fields. For instance, there is the unusual hobby pursued by Dr. Benjamin A. Cartwright, faculty member of the University of Oklahoma, who collects and classifies superstitions, although he does not believe in them. He has spent more than thirty years amassing his collection of some 12,000 auguries, portents, superstitions, emanations and magnetic influences.

Then there is the hobby of Sgt. Alexander Porter, of the One Hundred and Fifth Field artillery at Fort Dix, N. J., whose specialty is the collection of metal military insignia. Millard Hopper, world's unrestricted checker champion, collects checkers, his most prized ones being those taken from the Tombs of Athens. Mrs. Robert Montgomery, of Cleveland, collects recipes.

The hobby field appears boundless and, as these citations show, the pastime runs into many unique and novel directions. Judging from the satisfaction derived from its devotees, it is well worth cultivating.

The old-time statesman so frequently quoted must have been smarter than moderns. He could make a good speech without quoting old-timers.

These are tough times for the Libyan and Egyptian towns, with the Allies and the Axis playing return engagements in and around each one.

The meaning is certainly expressive, as we have come to understand it, although it appears that too often it is not practiced when it should be.

Many Americans who oppose participating in war favor taking part in hostilities.

Two Spenders

By MARSHALL MASLIN

My friend was big. Physically big. Big in his anger. Big in his love. Big in his understanding of love. Whatever he did, he did with all his heart. He hated all little ways of doing things. . . . And many a time I heard him quote from Robert Ingersoll:

Marshall Maslin

> "If you're going to spend a dollar, spend it! Spend it as though it were a withered leaf and you had a whole forest at your command!"

My friend told me that many years ago he was in a bar with a very rich man. My friend was buying the drinks for the two of them. He took half a dollar from his pocket and tossed it on the mahogany. . . . The rich man exclaimed:

> "Do you know I'd be willing to give half of all I possess if I could do that, if I could toss a coin on the bar as easily as you did that. I've tried many a time to do it, but I can't. I can take a fifty-cent piece from my pocket and push it carefully toward the man I'm paying. But anybody can see how it hurts me to do it."

The rich man went on to say that all he had was money, more money than he needed, more than he could ever spend on himself, and he frequently felt a deep impulse to help someone less fortunate with his money. But he couldn't do it. When he tried to put his hand into his pocket or use that right hand to write a check, the muscles wouldn't work. HE COULDN'T BE GENEROUS. And even when he did make a gift he always found himself tagging acrimonious advice onto the tail of it, and dulling the happiness of the receiver with grumpy warning.

He knew that people disliked him and he was also aware that he could convert their dislike to gratitude by changing his own nature a little. But he couldn't do it and more and more he was beginning to think of himself as a failure.

My big friend who used to quote Ingersoll on the subject of the withered leaf never had much money. In the nature of things he was no saver, nor ever a man to cringe before the grim possibilities of the future. He spent many a dollar as though it were a withered leaf. He praised many a man and lifted many a fearful creature to his proper stature. And when he died the leaves in his great forest were undiminished—and no one remembers the name of his pathetic rich friend, but thousands still are rich in their remembrance of my brave, good friend.

Balkan Disaster A Lesson for Us, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 24.—The actual military catastrophe of Greece and the Balkans and the growing menace in the Mediterranean should be no occasion for blaming Winston Churchill, Gen. Wavell or any other English authority for their use of British troops to support the Serbs and the Greeks. There is still such a thing as national honor. After encouraging these small nations to resist overwhelming enemy armament, it would have been a black betrayal not to come to their aid with everything in the British arsenal, even at the risk of what has happened and what from the beginning seemed inevitable to all well-informed observers.

Hugh S. Johnson

It is a catastrophe, but it is not of itself British defeat. It would not necessarily be British defeat if the whole Mediterranean area were blocked out by plugging up both ends at Gibraltar and Suez. It would be a terrible disaster to British arms and economy, but the "Lifeline of the Empire" has long been looped around the southern tip of Africa—ever since the Mediterranean route became unsafe for commerce. That adds 5,000 miles to the voyage and uses up a vast tonnage of precious cargo-carrying capacity, but it is not necessarily defeat.

Goes Farther Back

No, if blame for what has happened must be assessed, we must go far back of the decision to support Greece. A much graver error was the decision to encourge Poland to resist on a promise of British and French assistance when the latter two countries were not able to defend themselves, much less to defend Poland by so much as an ounce of military effort.

That decision turned Hitler's threat from east to west, made an ally for him out of Russia, which would otherwise have been an enemy, and thus destroyed not only Poland but eventually nearly all the small nations of Europe which were unthriftily encouraged to resist when they were utterly unprepared to do so.

Over and over again through the past six years this column has repeated:

> "To send men equipped only with World war armament against modern armored, mechanized, motorized equipment is almost as futile, cruel and hopeless as to send naked bow-and-arrow savages in canoes out to fight a modern battleship."

Axioms Still Hold

The old military axioms do not change. A nation such as Germany, in a central positon, even if it does have to fight on two fronts, has a tremendous advantage from its interior lines, even against overwhelming seapower, over a nation which can only attack over long, circuitous and dangerous flanking routes—such as the English attempt to create a new front in the Balkans.

Another military principle, proved by ages of experience, is never to attempt a campaign with inferior equipment on so wide a front or over so long a distance that it is doubtful whether you can support it. Another is always to measure your potential resources against the probable cost of your effort. Disregard of every one of these principles is responsible in part for the present unhappy outcome.

Fateful Lesson

This is not to cry over spilt milk. It is to suggest that there is a fateful lesson here for us. We are not concentrating on a strong military and naval position in readiness on our own incomparable interior lines. We seem to be spreading ourselves all over the face of the globe. We are not providing for our own defensive forces modern armored, mechanized, motorized equipment and men trained to use it with sufficient speed. We are sending it abroad.

We are not measuring our material resources against our assumed task. We are undertaking to finance and equip wars everywhere, and that is too much for even the magnificent wealth, income and potential production of the United States. Aid to Britain in the Battle of the Atlantic and the British Isles is excellent defensive strategy, but what business have we in Eastern Europe, Asia Minor, China and Malaysia? There is such a thing as buttering our strength too thin.

Andrew Jackson Houston, 87-year-old son of General Sam Houston, who led the Texas army to victory against Mexico in 1836, has been named to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas. The Defense Dollar

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

It goes without saying that every dollar in the defense program must produce a dollar's worth of defense if the effort is to yield maximum results. Yet there is discouraging evidence that the same old wasteful New Deal practices which have frittered away so much of the public substance during the past eight years still are being employed.

Recently, the Republican membership in Congress served notice that they intended exposing waste, extravagance and discrimination in the construction of army cantonments. And some interesting facts have been developed already.

Representative Albert Engel, Michigan Republican on the House Appropriation committee, revealed the first two reports of investigations he had made of a number of army camps. These concerned Camp Blanding in Florida and Fort George G. Meade in Maryland. Others soon will follow.

Engel told the House of Representatives he had found that forty percent of Camp Blanding's 117,000 acres were below the level of a near-by lake, that this fact had increased costs by more than $740,000 for a drainage system and dredging; that it had cost around $10,000 to remove some 1,500 tents out of the mud; that the Army had bought twenty-six miles of sixty-pound rails from the Southern railroad for the camp, whereas army regulations prescribed as a minimum eighty-pound rails; that roads built with crushed rock supplied by a newly-formed contracting partnership had cost $1,247,000, whereas engineers contended that $547,000 could have been saved by the use of sand, oil and clay binder.

Turning to Fort George G. Meade, the Michigan Republican pointed out that the original estimate for its construction was $9,053,187 but that now it is estimated it actually will cost $23,117,000. Overtime payments to labor—due in part to correct a discrimination in wage rates for which Secretary of Labor Perkins was responsible—accounted for $1,808,320 of the increased cost, Engel charged. Of the 8,113 workers listed on payroll as carpenters, thirty-five percent were not carpenters at all, Engel found.

But the underlying reason for the major part of the increase in cost, Engel explained, was the refusal of army officers to utilize that part of the Fort Meade site used in the first World war, where roads and sewers already were built.

It all has a strangely familiar ring, suggesting Arthurdale, Tugwelton and other fancy bits of New Deal planning in the heyday of the resettlement craze.

Low Income Groups Would Be Gouged Hard by Proposed Federal Tax Boost

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Income taxation was heavy enough to make the average individual ache severely when he handed in his last March return and forked over his check. True, he could do it in quarterly installments, but that simply was to prolong the agony.

Henry Morgenthau

Gosh, though it wasn't a circumstance in comparison with what next year's experience will be, if Congress acts on Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's suggestion to hike rates by about thirty per cent.

The boost will mainly sock just fair-to-middling incomes, too.

Hits Incentive

Cracking big ones already pay at such figures that their recipients will tend to quit making any more money. What'll be their inducement to make any more, only to surrender it to Uncle Sam? They'll prefer to live on their capital instead. It'll be an application of the well-known economic "law of diminishing returns."

Exemptions will be lowered, in order to catch a large class of small income earners who, hitherto, haven't been taxed at all.

Still, a small income receiver generally hasn't much style to maintain in his family's way of living. He'll be pinched and he'll holler, but he can economize a bit and stand the gaff. It's the bird in the merely average brackets who'll have a heck of a time. His household has to "keep up with the Joneses," and he literally can't trim his expenses much. He'll have to dip into his savings or, if he hasn't got any, run into the hole.

Middle Class Bears Load

It didnt' take any phenomenal income to be milked $100 last March. Next March it promises to $150. Maybe it will be more than that, the upper brackets being squeezed pretty close to the limit now, while the very low bracketers' contributions will be relatively small. If so, the middle bracketers will have to bear the bulk of the load of the thirty per cent increase.

Secretary Morgenthau also proposes various excise taxes — revenue stamps on all sorts of stuff. Consumers naturally will have to foot the bill for 'em. Well, the head of a family can more or less discount such levies, by yowling like fury to his wife and children to buy less. It may put 'em (and him) on short rations, but theoretically it can be done. He can't economize a cent's worth on an income tax collector's requisition, though.

All hands recognize that Secretary Morgenthau's sound in his argument that it's imperatime for us to meet current national expenditures by current taxation, as far as we can. If we run indefinitely into debt, as Henry truthfully remarks, we'll run indefinitely into inflation. That is, our money'll get to be worth less and less.

Currency Abandoned

Germany did it during the last war, and its currency got to be so valueless that it had to be abandoned and a new kind adopted.

I saw a more pronounced case of it, though, on a smaller scale, in Paraguay, while living in the little republic's neighborhood some years ago. Just after our own conflict in the United States the Paraguayans, under President Lopez, got into a fracas with Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay, all at once. They were outnumbersd about twenty to one, but they fought, on credit, for four years. In my time in South America, hard onto half a century later, they hadn't any money of their own at all. They hadn't even a substitute, like Germany. They traded in Argentine, English and U. S. dough. It's a fine situation for a country not to have ANY money except other countries' coinage or paper issuance!

Speaking of Age Limits

And, speaking of Paraguay!

There's talk in congress of cutting down our conscription age from 21 to 18, and perhaps the maximum from 35 to 30, but the minimum, anyway, from 21 to 18. There are critics, however, who contend that a kid of 18 is too young.

Now to get back to Paraguay.

President Lopez's conscription limits, in his war against Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay combined, were 12 to 70.

And, between those two ages, Paraguay's male population virtually was exterminated. President Lopez was included. He was killed, too. As long afterward as my day in the vicinity, Paraguay hadn't any old men. A total generation was wiped out in that war.

Scenes Shift Quickly Now

From the Pittsburgh Press

The chief characteristic of the world today is the rapidity with which the scenes are changing. Nations that a decade ago were weak have risen to the forefront in the march for power; and other nations which only recently were apparently strong now lie in the graveyard of the world.

History was once a slow-moving stream of events all interlocking, and it depended for its transitions on deep and ancient causes. The fabulous increase of speed in transportation and communication has changed all this.

Stumbling through the darkness, the Germans realized the potentialities in war of instruments that everyone had, but that no nation had fully used for its own selfish advantage. The rest of the world did not lag behind Germany in scientific progress. The other countries of the world simply were too conservative to try the things that Germany tried so recklessly yet successfully.

But just because modern scientific advances have enabled a few to change the map of the world with unheard-of haste, those now in the saddle will not necessarily remain there. With the scenes shifting so quickly, the battle power and the bargaining power of the downtrodden nations vary like the wind.

The terrible velocity of change will accelerate henceforward, rather than slow down; what took Caesar decades to accomplish is now done in a few short weeks.

The German military machine continues to roll up success after success, but change is inevitable; and if the democracies decide to meet the enemy man for man, weapon for weapon, with the same smashing speed on the offensive the Germans have used, we may see Hitler's new-born empire topple more quickly than now seems possible.

Book on Antarctic By Russell Owen Full of Interest

By EDWIN C. HILL

One of our favorite items of hayloft reading, back in the days when all the world was young, was an old book about early Elizabethan voyages. There was escape literature for you! My favorite picture showed the umbrella-footed natives of an island somewhere off the African coast. Only the right foot, I believe, was so adapted. The carefree beach-comber lay on the sand, hiked up his right leg, unlimbered his web foot and snoozed with his home-grown parasol providing perfect shade.

Edwin C. Hill

The book, which came into our library from heaven knows where, was full of such marvels, solemnly set forth with supporting testimony. Lacking travel and disillusionment, one needn't have had a dull moment, back in the age of faith. It's a long stretch to the careful, precise reporting of Russell Owen in his new book, "The Antarctic Ocean," just now put on the ways by Whittlesey House.

Combination Unique

We can't recall an instance in which a first-class reporter, which Mr. Owen is, has engaged in a grapple with a far wilderness and has told his story within the rigid framework of both scientific and journalistic accuracy, and yet made the live interest and drama of the tale stand out like a lighthouse. This combination of the camera eye and the disciplined writing wrist is unique and all but unprecedented in the annals of exploration.

Mr. Owen rounds up the South Pole drives of Ross, Scott, D'Urville, Wilkes, Cook (1774), Wedell, Biscoe, Palmer, Shackleton, Amundsen and Byrd; he dredges up a score of thrilling narratives, and, with the cool detachment which his theme suggests, debunks some fantastic ideas about the mineral wealth and stragetic importance of this region.

"Its only material wealth," says Mr. Owen, in conclusion, "lies in the ocean surrounding it—the whales. Its real wealth is what man can learn from it, the secrets he can wrest from its wind and its rocks."

Pulitzer Prize Winner

Mr. Owen, one of the ace correspondents of the New York Times, won the Pulitzer Prize for his stories of the first Byrd expedition of 1929-30. Previously, he had been with Amundsen and Byrd at Spitzbergen, and had specialized in aviation and exploring. In his new book, as usual, he turns up a brand-new story, or rather dredges it from the scrap heap of old log books and records of forgotten voyagers.

His stand-out story here was to do with young Captain Nat Palmer, of Stontington, Conn., who, writes Mr. Owen, "is the first one whose sighting of the Antarctic continent can be proved." He was on the brig Hersilia, sailing from Stonington in 1819. "The story of how the Hersilia reached the Shetlands is worthy of any dime novel," Mr. Owen continues.

"On the Falklands, young Nat Palmer was left to kill bullocks for provisions. While he was there, a ship called the Espirito Santo came in from Buenos Aires and Palmer piloted her into the harbor and supplied her with fresh meat. Before she sailed, the captain told Palmer that he was on his way to a place where there are thousands of seal, but would not say where it was.

"A few days after the Espirito Santo sailed, the Hersilia returned and young Nat told Sheffield (the captain) that he could followed the other ship. He did so and discovered the crew of the Espirito Santo killing seal. Far from being annoyed, the British captain of the Spanish ship was so filled with Palmer's astuteness that when his own ship was filled, his crew helped fill the hold of the Hersilia."

Captain of Sloop

After weighing carefully and discounting a certain "romantic aura" of the above story, Mr. Owen reveals young Palmer, back at the South Shetlands the next time as captain of the sloop Hero, one of five ships of a sailing fleet, and this time sighting the mountainous mainland of Antarcitica on Nov. 15, 1820, from a distance of fifty miles.

"He went on to become a famous clipper captain, and finally a member of the state legislature and a pillar of Connecticut society," Mr. Owen writes. "He was a little more than six feet tall, with light complexion and light hair, a powerful, sinewy man, quick as a cat on his feet, and possessed of a daring initiative that made him notable even on his first voyage, when he was only twenty years old."

There are those among us, still young in spirit who, in Vergil's line, still hope to "fill the sails of destiny." Mr. Owen's book will help.

The past principals of the school, Miss Jane Botsworth, assistant county supervisor and Miss Mildred Willison; Mrs. Blanche P. Clover, who is becoming an inactive member of the association after serving sixteen years and the faculty members, Miss Christine Porter, present principal; Mrs. Ethel Cunningham Bruce, Miss Helen M. Allee, Mrs. Hannah Struckman Allamong, Miss Mary Bernard and Mrs. Mary Lyons Grimm were the honor guests and each was presented with a rose by one of the children of the first grade.

A program of songs and recitations were presented by the first grade pupils and refreshments were served by their mothers. A green and white birthday cake large enough to serve the 150 guests formed the centerpiece of the refreshments table.

Mr. Landefeld appointed Miss Christine Porter, Mrs. B. J. Kilroy, Mrs. W. I. Burton and Raymond Hinkle a nominating committee, with Miss Porter chairman. The new officers for the year will be elected May 29.

Mrs. Blanche P. Clower and Mrs. A. P. Komponek were appointed a committee for the picnic which will be held in early June, the place to be decided later.

Draftee Is Honored

John Rapillo was host at a party last evening, at Christopher Columbus Club rooms, North Mechanic street, honoring his brother, Andrew Rapillo, who will leave tomorrow for Fort George G. Meade.

Among the gifts received by Rapillo was a watch given by his brother. Refreshments were served.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Salvador Indolofi, Miss Josephine Indolofi, Mrs. A. Amato, Miss Mary DeRosa, Miss Elizabeth DeRosa, Pasquale Amato, Filix Caparalla, Clarence Davis, Jerry Spear, Joseph Spear, Loy Flegal, Buck Burnes, Sam Margareta, Louis DeRosa, Carl DeRosa, Louis DeRosa, Jr., Peter Ridgeley, John Edward Barnett, Andrew Rapillo and John Rapillo.

State Adds 36,495 Acres To Blister Rust Control Project

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—The Conservation Commission reported today that 36,495 acres of white pine bearing land were added last year to the blister rust control program.

At the year's end, the commission announced, "the blister rust control program in West Virginia had brought under protection 244,719 acres of white pine bearing lands in Pendleton, Summers, Hardy, Raleigh, Mercer, Hampshire, Pocahontas, Greebrier, Monroe and Tucker counties.

Eradication of the disease, which alternately attacks white pine trees and the leaves of gooseberry and currant bushes, was started in 1933 under the joint sponsorship of the Conservation Commission and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

West Virginia Wants Wilder Wild Turkeys

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Three large wire-fenced enclosures in West Virginia forests may produce the answer this spring to the Conservation Commission's perennial quest for "wilder" wild turkeys.

Experience has proved, said an official today, that game farm birds are not alert to native surroundings when liberated in the wilds.

Sometimes the birds starve in the midst of plenty, simply because they have grown accustomed to finding food placed by human hands.

How to provide the necessary wild surroundings and at the same time maintain control of the breeding flock has been a perplexing problem for years.

The newest plan is three enclosures in Kumbrabow and Seneca State Forests, each three to six acres in size and surrounded by a five-foot fence.

They were located in abundant wild turkey country, and each plot was stocked with two or more hens, their wing feathers clipped to keep them from flying over the fence.

Limited artificial feeding is done at night, to avoid all possible human contact with the birds.

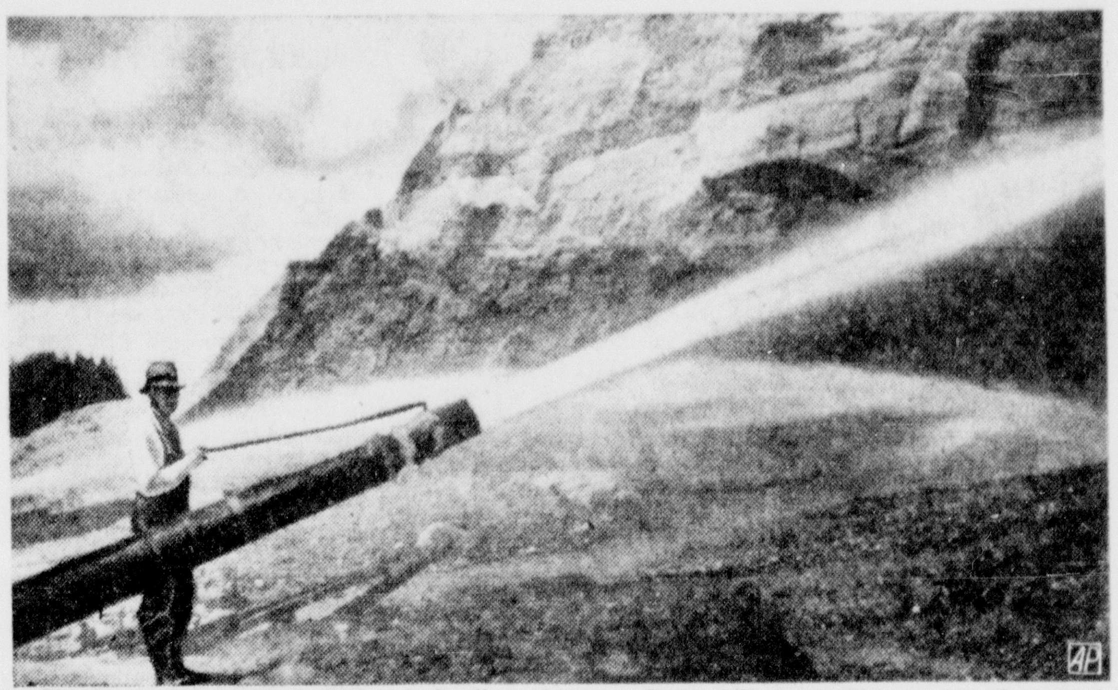
Officials hope that the young produced in this experiment will be sufficiently hardened to their wild surroundings to fly over the fence to full freedom.

By that time, they figure, the hens will have sprouted new wing feathers and will follow suit.

Violin strings of gut are being wound with a nylon filament to protect them from moisture and wear.

Glycerin, once obtained only from animal and vegetable matter, now can be made from oil refinery gases.

Billion-Dollar Gold Hoard in West Tapped by 'Siltless' Hydraulic Mining



This is a "monitor", nozzle used in hydraulic gold mining. Entire hills are melted away by the powerful stream. Today, however, the silt is trapped and streams saved from ruin.

BY SAM JACKSON
AP Feature Service Writer

GRASS VALLEY, Calif.,—Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of gold, untouched for more than 50 years while many of its owners suffered actual hardship, is about to be cashed in.

The location of this bonanza has been known since the gold rush days. It is mapped almost as accurately as your own city block, and its immense value has been affirmed by the country's greatest geologists and engineers. Yet all the owners could do was to look at it and sigh.

The explanation is that the precious metal is so situated in canyons of the Sierra Nevada mountains that it can be recovered profitably by only one method—hydrualic mining. Until 1884 this system of tearing down gold-bearing banks with powerful jets of water was in full swing, and George W. Hallock, an authority on the subpect, estimates this immediate area produced $500,000,000.

Farmers Won Bitter Fight

But the vast scale of operations sent millions of tons of sand downsteam. Rivers clogged up, impeding navigation and sending flood waters spreading over valuable farms. The silt itself sometimes converted a grainfield into a desert.

Mining history tells of the feud between farmers and miners, each side fighting for existence. The farmers finally won when the Sawyer Devision of 1884 declared hydraulic mining a nuisance and enjoined the operators from polluting the streams.

The industry stopped. Men who thought they were rich saw a door slammed shut on their treasure. Some of the gold-flecked lands were sold for taxes.

Now, as part of the great public works program born of depression years, Uncle Sam is releasing the riches.

Repay In Thirty Years

The solution to the farmer-miner problem is a series of great dams, which will store up water in which the debris will be trapped and thus — it is expected — preserve the stream below the dam. Already one has been built on the Yuba river at a cost of $3,500,000 and a smaller one on the American river at $646,000. Two others are projected.

The government expects to be reimbursed in thirty years by charging the miners "storage." For every cubic yard of silt washed into the man-made lakes, the miners must pay a fee of a few cents.

The fight for a solution was waged by a mining engineer turned congressman, Harry Englebright, supported by the California Hydraulic Mining association. Few if any of the original locators of the rich gravels are alive, but their heirs banded together to realize on the fabulous well nigh forgotten wealth of the Sierras.

Once again the "monitors," giant nozzles fed by mountain streams, are washing whole hillsides through sluice boxes which trap the gold.

Before the known deposits are exhausted, mining men say, something like a billion dollars will be added to America's hoard of gold.

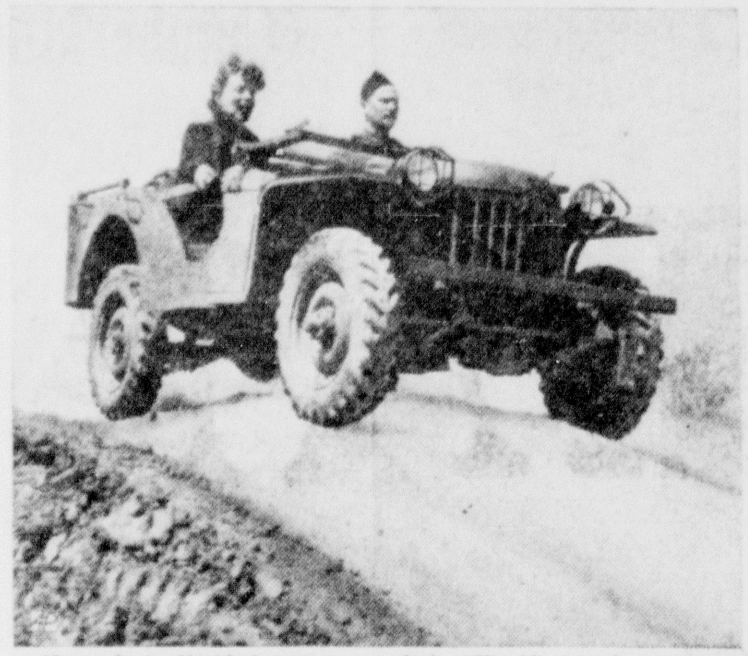
Sigrid Arne Hits the High Spots In the Army's New 'Blitz Buggy'

By SIGRID ARNE
AP Feature Service Writer



Memo from Sigrid Arne to copy desk: "Would you please not use picture where hair is hanging down back?" Desk to Miss Arne: "We liked this one better anyway."

BALTIMORE — I've been for a ride in one of the Army's little "blitz buggies". Not just a little ride on the Camp Holabird testing ground.

We—my stomach and I—rode up and down in elevators. Only they weren't the same elevators.

That buggy is a bundle of excitement. It's a little fellow with no embroidery. It clears the ground by only nine inches, has only an 80-inch wheel-base and no doors. There's just a safety belt to keep you from falling out. Seats are low to the floor, and a U-shaped seat in back holds two gunners.

There are three speeds: High, usual and low. You can get three speeds out of each of those. So it's really nine.

We—an officer and I—started out by rolling over something that resembled a back road in Africa. It was the smoothest road in sight. Then we dove for some steep hills—about twelve feet straight down, and twelve feet straight up with no breathing space between.

A La Roller Coaster

At that point (I have no Indian blood) the Black Feet tribe would have been proud of my yodel. The ground was dropping. So we took a double drop. My hands were frozen to bars on the floor. But what I sit on wasn't sitting.

Then we swung on a 10-foot diameter. I felt like I could reach out to the side and pat my own cheek. It was like riding the tail of a duck that suddenly had decided to turn around and go home.

Well, then, without a aye-yes-or-no, we zoomed off across a queer, striped road of slim blocks of cement that looked like railroad ties. We flew along over them, chattering, up, down, up down.

The blitz buggy rattled off that corduroy, swung on another dime, and swirled around, half way down a 12 foot drop. Then it stopped. We were sitting at a 45 degree angle. It tips at 55, but I'll take their word for it.)

Then muck. The bug pushed muck up to the floor without a snort. Then it took off over some plowed ground decorated with big chunks of concrete.

Then came the big scare. We went up a hill which has been specially built to see what a bug will climb. Well, it will climb 65 feet in traveling a hundred. Half way up I felt as though I could reach out and push the hilltop out of my hair.

Top Speed of 70

The bug can stop on that grade and start again. One ordinary car tried to make it and stalled a third of the way up.

The down grade was no fun either. It felt like traveling down the Great Smokies on a step-ladder.

At that point we stopped for breath. "It can get around," the officer said with a grin. It seemed an understatement.

He explained that the bug is designed to move in a swift assault. It could carry officers back and forth between moving troops. It could carry anti-aircraft guns to protect moving troops. It could haul an anti-tank gun to meet an enemy attack. It could carry four armed men and a mounted machine gun on a swivel.

The bug will do 70 miles an hour, although the army finds 55 is enough. With a full tank it can cruise for 175 miles without yelling for more gasoline. The army has 4,500 such cars contracted for.

Then the officer stopped talking and gave the bug the gun. We headed for the hill again. I signalled.

He stopped.

"This is where I get out," I said, "Nice to have met you."

Differences in Bones Studied by Scientists

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—Add obscure developments in agricultural research:

Orton and his staff were unable to offer an explanation for the difference, but asserted that the finding was significant inasmuch as nutrition research is often based on the outcome of the chemical analysis of bones.

Chemists at the station studied the composition of the skeletons of various animals and fowls, including white rats, chickens, pigs and heifers.

"For many years," the director said, "scientists have assumed that the bones from the two sides of an animal were identical in makeup.

"Research by C. E. Weakley Jr. and R. B. Dustiman proved this is not necessarily the case, at least as far as chickens and hogs are concerned. Here we found a tendency for the left side to have heavier bones with a higher moisture content."

Salads or greens such as lettuce, spinach, onions, endive, Chinese cabbage and celery, generally speaking, should be grown rapidly and need quickly available nitrogen such as nitrate of soda.

The nation's food loss annually from molds and bacteria is estimated at more than $100,000,000 ..

The Old Judge Knew a Thing or Two, Including Why Some People Fall Out of Love after Marriage

By JOSEPH BARBER

"On the grounds which we have presented thus far in the case of Kay Turner versus Jay Turner, I move that the court entertain a motion for my plaintiff, Mrs. Kay Turner."

Judge Gerard Brophy passed a manicured hand over his nicely massaged face and looked down over the rim of the bench to the persons involved. It didn't seem possible that anyone with a wife as fine as Mrs. Turner would want to rid himself of her.

"Legally, the court must admit the possibilities of a ground of severance of the matrimonial ties between Kay Turner and the defendant, Jay Turner," he launched into the rather famous little rigamarole which had earned for him the title of "the Fixit Judge." "There are human aspects to be considered also!" Attorney Morford for Kay, sighed gently.

"If your honor please, I think that there can be no possible chance of my client consenting to a readjustment of this matter with the defendant," he attempted to forestall the old familiar hokum with which Judge Brophy was primed. "The issue is one of complete mental incompatability."

"Ah, yes! I well recollect the testimony that Mrs. Turner's witness, Miss Evangeline Rogerson, presented to the bench. I remember her sworn statement of being present during innumerable petty quarrels in the Turner home. A very dramatic recital, I remember!"

Attorney Morford fumed inwardly, but he remained calm outwardly. Why shouldn't it be dramatic? Evangeline was one of the best character actresses in the current legitimate show at the town's best house, wasn't she? Holy smokes what did the old duck expect her to give, some elocution? Evangeline knew how to roll those baby-blue eyes of hers, you bet

"I Thought We Had It All Settled"

"But the case, your honor, will profit nothing by a further delay!" Morford urged. As soon as Kay got rid of the chump she was tied to, they had plans of their own which included a little cottage with roses. "We pray that the court will render a decision immediately!"

"I cannot be hasty, learned counsel," Judge Brophy said with a smile of sad insistency which brought out a deep dimple on the side of his cheek nearest to Evangeline Rogerson. "You forget, in your zeal for your client, that a Miss Rita Evans was named as a disturbing element in the pathway of the marital journey of the defendant and the plaintiff!"

"That is true, your honor," Morford had to admit.

"It may well be that, as experience has proved, Jay Turner found himself emotionally bracketed by the attentions of Miss Evans. Nothing has been proved in this court which implies interest of an illegal nature—merely that Jay Turner accepted the friendship and company of Miss Evans too generously."

Attorney Morford winced and hoped that the old windbag would get through with his customary speech and adjourn court for the day. Even the judge could see that Jay was only too glad to be rid of Kay, because he was madly in love with Rita Evans! But a reporter from the Post was in the empty back of the courtroom and Judge Brophy liked to keep up his paternal pose for the press.

"It is my duty, before passing any decision, to invite the plaintiff and the defendant to a private hearing of their family differences in my chambers. If it be the will of the Almighty, a means might be found to keep this union from being severed by the hand of man!"

"I thought we had it all settled, darling!" Morford said a bit peevishly the following afternoon to his client. "I expected that you would be ready to start seeing things with me. You don't really mean that you're going out with your husband? The decree is practically automatic now, you know!"

"But I'm not so sure now, Bill! Judge Brophy mentioned things in a different light in his chambers. He and Mrs. Brophy are ideally mated, I guess. I just can't afford to make a mistake!"

"What does Jay think?"

"He's not so sure about it, either. Maybe he was just infatuated by Rita Evans after all! If we're making a mistake, now's the time to find out, Bill! And the Judge seems to know so much about fidelity and quarrels."

"All right, you and Jay go out tonight and bore each other for another evening. I'll call Rita and have her along at another table, just in case you change your minds!"

"I don't know, Bill!" Kay wailed miserably. "I can see now, like another person almost, where I could have been a little kinder to poor Jay! Maybe the judge is right!"

"Nuts, darling!" Morford discounted her misgivings. But after he was alone, he wondered a little on his own account! Brophy had something on the ball that wasn't visible!

Later that night at the 80 Club, Morford and Rita sat uncomfortably at their table, exchanging small talk. At the other side of the room sat Kay and Jay looking very happy.

Suddenly Morford jumped up and went over to their table.

"Take a look over there," he pointed, without further introduction.

Kay followed his directions, and there in a corner, holding the hand of a gorgeous blonde creature was the fidelity boy, Judge Brophy.

"See?" said Morford pointedly. "He spouts about being true to your chosen mate, but here he is himself in the company of a butterfly. How can you follow the advice of a man like that?"

"Easily," said Kay, with a smile. "The butterfly, as you so erroneously call her, happens to be his daughter."

Wise Girl Should Learn the Art Of Being Loved

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage – Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

We've heard a good deal in recent years about equal partnership in love.

Is it true, as I'm beginning to suspect, that it is just as natural now as it ever was for the man—the leader and protector, as well as the lover—to accept a good deal more than a half share in so-called love partnerships?

Just because so much has been said these latter years about women's independence, just because so many young wives have held jobs and done the housework, have young men come to prefer the girl who is not only deeply loving and devoted but who unselfishly insists on standing squarely on her own two feet?

Or are they still likely to be beguiled, as I fear they always have been, by the self-indulgent coquette who makes herself irresistible by demanding that everything in the world be done for her while she does nothing in return?

Here's a case of a girl whose loss of a lover seems to be due to her complete unselfishness and her innocence of the age-old trickery through which women hold their men.

Letter Tells Story

This girl, Grace M., has been deserted by her boy friend. The following letter tells her story:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I had been engaged for two happy years. The wedding date was set and the time drawing near. And now I have lost him. He cares for another girl and has told me so. It is worse than losing my life. I love him with my whole being and always shall.

"And now I can do nothing but cry all night long. Sleep and food are out of the question. Is it my own fault? Do I deserve this misery? Please tell me, Miss Fairfax.

"My boy friend always has had a small salary. I got a job so that we might both save for our new home. Besides that, I never would let Tom take me out, so we could save that much more. We'd sit at home and read, or play games, or walk in the park. We had so many things to plan.

"I thought no two people ever loved each other as we did. In my mind we were just as firmly bound together as though we were married.

"About three months ago he met a girl who began to scheme to get him away from me. She wouldn't lift a finger to help him as I did, and I know she doesn't really love him. But she has him, while here I am with my life ruined and over."

"GRACE M."

In this case, at least—and who knows in how many others?—it is heartbreaking to admit that abounding love on the girl's part has not been enough to save the day. Did Tom feel too sure of this girl who so generously adored him and who gave up years of her precious youth to slaving in the interest of his future comfort?

Didn't Play Man's Part

Perhaps it would be fairer to say that he was uncomfortable because he really wasn't playing the man's part in this love situation. When a purely selfish siren came along, who gave him a chance to do all the loving, all the working, and likewise all the worrying, he fell for her and for the chance to play a completely masculine role.

We can never love too much. But if we are women, it is perhaps well that we keep some part of our love secret, so that our sweethearts may never be quite sure just what treasures our hearts hold for them. Women have to learn that there is an art in loving as in letting themselves be loved. It's tragic, indeed, when we lose a lover merely because we didn't know how to weave a few charming tissues of perfectly harmless deceit.

Husband Complains of Cost

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I married a wonderful woman. She's as neat as a pin and is a good cook. I like to take her out and like to have my friends come in to meals, as she's such a credit to me. What bothers me is that it takes so much money for her to keep herself in such good condition. Permanents ever so often, a trip to the beauty parlor every couple of weeks, to have the hair dressed. Besides that she must have oil treatments, manicures and even facials.

She contends that as long as she does all the housework and is very economical, she should have these little extras.

WORRIED

You say your wife is economical and saves you money by doing her own work. You enjoy going out with her because she is always so well groomed and you like to invite your friends to the house. Then why object to the amount she spends in making herself so pleasing to you?

If you destroy her morale by objecting to her beauty parlor trips, she'll turn into a "dowdy" and then you won't be so proud of her. That will also make her feel discouraged and she will lose her skill in cooking and housekeeping.

Go Their Separate Ways

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been married for thirteen years to a man I loved very much and who loved me. We were happy at first, but about seven years ago he started going out without me. For two years I didn't let on that I cared, and then I started going out, thinking he would care and would wonder where I went. But he never asked me. So that's the way we're living now—he goes his way and I go mine.

Some of my friends have seen him with another woman, but I've never seen him with her. I go out with my girl friend, but never with another man. I still love my husband, but I'm sure now that he doesn't love me or he wouldn't act this way.

I have a job and make my own living. We have no children. Please, Miss Fairfax, is there anything you would suggest? Everybody thinks we ought to separate. Should I keep on living the rest of my life this way, or would you advise leaving him?

E.

Wouldn't you be punishing yourself severely by leaving the man you love? This deduction is founded on hundreds of letters I have received from wives in similar positions to yours, who have written, after they have separated from their husbands, pitiful things like, "If I could only see him reading his paper sometimes." Or, "I know he didn't love me, but I just loved to see him around."

If you were interested in any other man, that could be taken into consideration, or, again, if you intended to start your life all over again, get a divorce and look for a husband who would be more appreciative. But to quit now, when these things are uncertainties, does not seem the wisest course to me.

Escort for School Prom

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years of age and would like to invite a young man, who is 21 years of age, to our school prom. One of the boys in my class has asked me to go with him, but I have not accepted, as I feel I would enjoy myself more if I were with the older boy. I've been out with him several times and he's very sociable. He doesn't know many of my friends.

If you think it would be all right to ask him, should I buy the tickets?

BETTY

When one is Sweet Sixteen, to my way of thinking, she should ask the boy she likes best to the Prom. As the years roll on, these happy times are good things to remember. Of course, if you invite the young man, you are supposed to buy the tickets, as he is your guest.

NELSON EDDY ADMITS HE HAS A GOOD JOB, BUT SAYS IT'S THE BUNK ABOUT HIS SHIRTS

By JOHN SELBY
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK.—Big, blond Nelson Eddy says that his six years of extravagant success is just the case of a young man trying to hold his job in Hollywood.

It's a good job, he admits, but he won't tell how good it is. This is because he gets too many requests for help when six-digit income figures are bandied about. But its admitted generally that Eddy makes more money than any living musician, what with films, records and concerts.

He'll Take Any Part

Eddy has ideas about how to hold jobs.

"I've never yet refused to play a part they've asked me to play," he says in his deep, rich voice. "Even when it's not much of a part, as in 'Bittersweet,' I still take on the job. I'd rather work than not, and that's the truth.

"Heck, I can remember the kick I got when they moved me into the star's building after my first big picture, 'Naughty Marietta.'

Nelson Eddy

"I can even remember how bewildered I was when they made 'Naughty Marietta.' The director said, 'Go over there and do that' and I did. Then he said 'Come over here and do this' and I did. Then one day they said to go see the first version and boy, oh boy, did I get a kick? Because it made sense to me for the first time.

Unkind to His Ego

"In fact, I thought I should take myself seriously, but after a picture or so I decided that I wasn't a very important person, but my job was important."

Eddy hasn't much patience with great singers who go out to Hollywood and get their backs up because Hollywood won't make films to suit their operatic talents.

"Opera has no more place in Hollywood," says Eddy, "than films have at the Metropolitan. Some day something like opera will come out of Hollywood—but it will be something written directly for the screen.

"You put 'La Traviata' on the screen as it is now, and it would seem either foolish or naive, and be too slow in any case."

In the Winter, Concerts

Eddy likes to dress well and inconspicuously. He likes sculpture, and he sculpts. He went to Williamsburg and was delighted with the houses he saw, so be built himself one in California. When he has a free moment, he visits museums. And he still is a singer—every winter he does 30 or 40 concerts. He's just closing his tour now.

He has one all-consuming passion. It is to fight down the legend that he can't send shirts to the laundry because they are stolen; that women tear the buttons off his coat and snip at his back hair with scissors.

"So help me," he says, "it's all the bunk and I never lost a shirt or a button in my life."

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

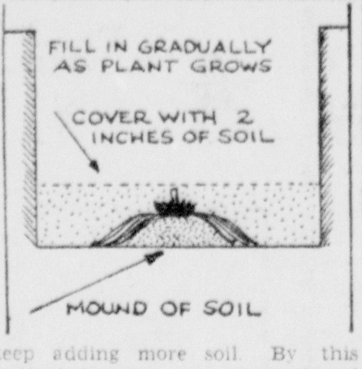
By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Distributed by Central Press Association)

PLANTING ASPARAGUS CROWNS

When purchasing asparagus roots select strong one-year-old crowns. They are superior to older crowns for their roots establish themselves quickly and grow more rapidly than those of older crowns.

The soil in which the asparagus roots are to be planted should be deeply worked before planting and should have liberal applications of manure.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, have the trench about eight inches deep in light soil and five inches in heavy soil. Set the roots or crown in the bottom of the trench on a two-inch mound of soil. Spread out the roots and cover over with a few inches of soil. Do not fill the trench.



As the plants grow, gradually keep adding more soil. By this method the roots are not smothered out by too much soil before they have an opportunity to grow.

Lily-of-the-valley, myrtle and other ground cover plants can be set out now. Care should be taken not to set these plants too low as they will not live if the crowns of the plants are covered.

Poor vegetable seeds yield only disappointment. It pays to have only the best seed. They should be bought by variety name directly from commercial seedsmen.

Kate Smith Will Mark Anniversary On Radio Tonight

Will Present Play, "Johnny Appleseed," for the Third Time

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, April 24 — Kate Smith celebrates in her CBS program Friday night at 8. It is her tenth anniversary in broadcasting, all as a CBS star. For the occasion she will present for the third time the radio play "Johnny Appleseed," and have as her guests her sponsor, Clarence Francis, and the head of the CBS chain, William S. Paley.

Because Bill Stern couldn't be in two places at once he will have to forego teaming up with Sam Taub for another NBC-Blue fight broadcast. He will be at Des Moines to provide a half-hour description of the first two days of broadcasting from the annual Drake relays, set for NBC-Blue at 5.

Bantamweight Fight

Helping out Sam Taub for the fight broadcast at 10—it is the bantamweight title clash between Lou Salica and Lew Transparenti—will be Bob Stanton.

An hour's special concert for MBS at 8, supplied by the Wallenstein orchestra and the Westminster choir, will be Hayden's "The Seasons."

At 11:15 MBS will relay a recording of a London short wave broadcast by Ernest Bevin, British minister of labor, in which he is to make "an Appeal to American Labor."

It's Roastin' Ears That Really Count

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., (AP) A bill up for discussion in the Missouri legislature would make hunters get written permission to hunt upon a farmer's property.

A casual poll of the legislators present disclosed that farmers among them had lost:

Four lambs and a sheep, to hunting dogs.

A steer, from gunshot wounds.

"And no tellin' how many roastin' ears," added Rep. J. A. Murry, who raises such things.

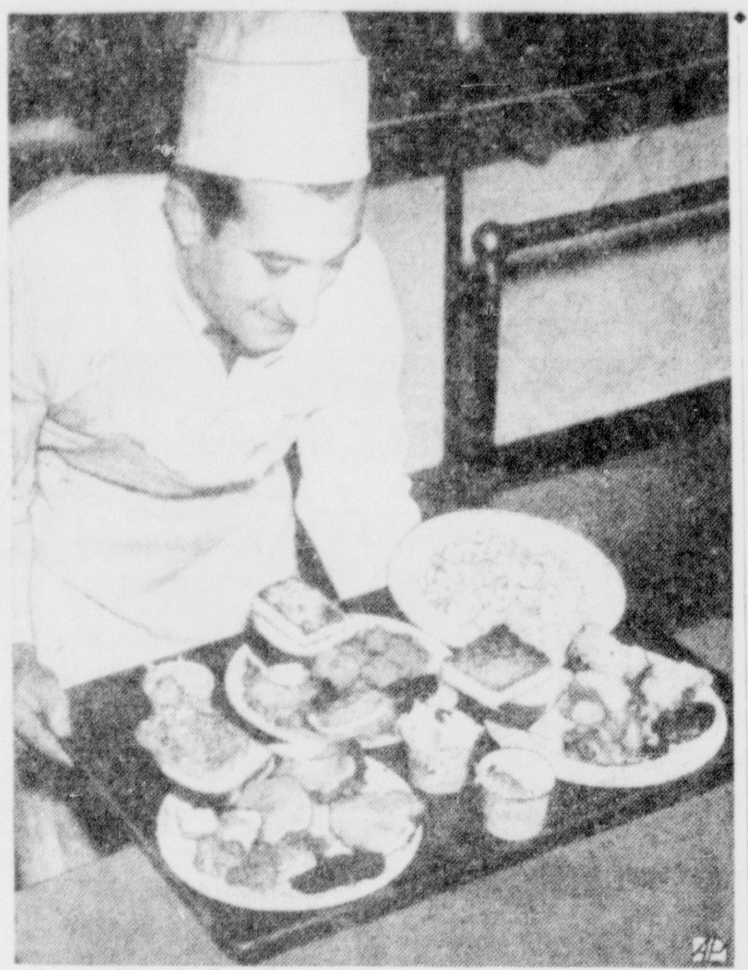
Vitamins Are O. K. in Their Place, But a Soldier Will Settle for Vittles



Lots of Vitamin B in these servings for three U. S. soldiers at Camp George Meade, Maryland. The menu was roast pork, sauerkraut, potatoes, beets, fresh vegetable salad, cocoanut cake and the trimmings.

By ALEXANDER GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON—That big V stands for "vittles"—not vitamins—in John J. Soldier's life.

The people who direct the care and feeding of the U. S. Army definitely are vitamin-minded but the soldiers themselves aren't getting that way.

New trainees and veterans alike have unhesitating appreciation for roast beef or stewed chicken and dumplings. They attack a mound of mashed potatoes and gravy with magnificent elan and the way they polish off banana cream pie is as impressive a gastronomic blitz as you would ever hope to see. But they leave it strictly to the Army's food specialists to worry about nutrition values.

Biggest Problem Is Monotony

The Army ration, with its 39 component items ranging from 10 ounces of beef to sugar and syrup and scores of substitute foods, is figured to supply 5,000 calories a day for each soldier. From 4,500 to 4,800 calories are rated sufficient for a stonecutter.

Miss Mary . Barber, food consultant to the Army, says that while nutrition is a primary consideration, it isn't a particular problem because the ration contains a more than adequate allotment of vitamins, minerals and other health-building elements.

"Our immediate concern is to avoid meal monotony by providing a variety of tasty, well-balanced meals," she reports.

The Army cook book already has 331 recipes, some ninety of these for cooking meat. Shy on variety and mysteriously heavy on vinegar was the army ration back in 1776: A pound and a half of beef, 18 ounces of flour or bread, salt and a gallon of vinegar. Some researchers think vinegar might have been spruce beer.

A Weekly Menu

The Army ration has been enlarged and made much more flexible since 1918. Outstanding improvement, Miss Barber thinks, is the increase of fresh fruits, fresh vegetables and salads.

Here is a typical menu for a weekday at a training camp:

Breakfast—Oranges, assorted cereals, fresh milk, hot cakes, sausage, hot toast, butter, syrup, coffee, sugar.

Dinner—Beef soup, crackers, mixed pickles, baked Virginia ham, raisin sauce, candied sweet potatoes, asparagus tips, pear salad with cheese, chocolate cake, bread, butter, coffee, milk, sugar.

Supper—Pickled beets, macaroni and cheese, Vienna sausage, string beans, sliced tomatoes, doughnuts, bread, butter, hot tea, cocoa.

Meat alternatives include lamb, mutton, veal, liver, fish, turkey, ducks and even reindeer meat, fresh or frozen. Such meals cost the government 42 to 44 cents a day per soldier.

Believe it or not, there are, according to the Census bureau, four artificial ice factories in Alaska, employing twenty men.

A Good Memory Helps a Lot

ATHENS (AP) — One British pilot, says British Press Service, twice cheated death when he got a hold on his memory after an absent-minded jag.

He shot down an Italian plane. But his Spitfire controls got blasted away. He jumped, but forgot to pull the rip-cord of his parachute until he saw the ground rushing up at him. With only the nick of time to spare, he landed safely in the midst of Greek front lines.

That was swell. But he neglected to let the Greeks know who he was. He woke up again when machine gun bullets almost tickled his toes.

The Greeks stopped the bullets when they learned he was English. And gave him captured Chianti wine.

DON'T

judge Vitamins by the Price-Tag

- Everyone knows about vitamins and the vital role they play in promoting health and in helping to build resistance. But not everyone knows how to judge vitamins and be assured of the greatest values.

Never buy vitamin products by price alone. It isn't what you pay, but what you get for your money that counts. We feature Abbott Vitamin Products because of their high vitamin potency, stated vitamin content, and their dependability. Your Doctor's prescriptions will be filled with Abbott's when brought here.

NEW ALBANY, Ind. (AP) — Though blind 25 years, Morgan Trinkle is a successful used car dealer. In 10 minutes, by hearing the motor and feeling fenders, body and upholstery, he can tell what an automobile is worth to him.

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Russia has found its own "Helen Keller"—a deaf, dumb and blind girl, Olga Skorakhodova — who has become an author of articles and poetry.

ROME (AP) — Blind men are fighting in the Italian army—with their ears. They have proved themselves among the best at manning the weird mechanical ears which listen for air raiders. Those who make good chiefly are men who have been blind many years and thus have been forced to train their hearing to substitute for lack of vision.

Facts about Bovine Tuberculosis Are Discussed by Noted Physician

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I am in receipt of an extremely interesting letter from a woman in Halifax, N. S. She writes, "The cows in Hants County are being tested for tuberculosis, and signatures are needed to bring them to this county. I opened the subject at a church meeting and was amazed at the reception I got. They would rather risk the disease than lose a cow. I have a brother of twenty-one who has been in bed nearly six years with bovine tuberculosis. This neighborhood, almost to a man, reads the Halifax Chronicle and an article on the subject seems to me to be needed at the present time. Is it possible for human being to get tuberculosis from cows?"

Government Inspection

It most certainly is possible for human beings to contract bovine tuberculosis. This was denied for a long time, but there is no question that the transmission occurs, especially in children, resulting in bone and joint tuberculosis, but it also can cause tuberculosis of the lungs.

The experience in the United States with the United States Department of Agriculture is a striking one. Some years ago in such agricultural and dairy states as Nebraska, the Dakotas and Utah, the tuberculosis death rate was very high. In 1906 the United States Department of Agriculture established governmental inspection of meat, and discovered the terrible inroads tuberculosis was making in domestic animals.

In 1916 the United States began a campaign to eradicate tuberculosis in live stock and ordered that alll cattle which reacted to the tuberculin test were to be slaughtered. As a result of that campaign in the same states of Nebraska, the Dakotas and Utah, the tuberculosis death rate is fifteen per 100,000 population as compared to the general rate in the country of 46.6. This reduction has been ascribed to the wiping out of tuberculosis among cattle.

This is in striking contrast to the experience in England. The English Ministry of Agriculture began a similar campaign in 1913, but whereas in the United States alll cattle which reacted to the tuberculin test were slaughtered, in England the Ministry slaughtered only obviously ill and consumptive animals. The result of this up to 1937 was that in England the situation as regards tuberculosis among cattle was practically the same as in 1913.

Up to recent times forty per cent of the cows in England had foci of tuberculosis and six per cent of all deaths from tuberculosis in children were of the bovine type. In the United States, owing to the rigorous enforcement of drastic laws seventy-five per cent of dairy counties have reduced the incidence of tuberculosis in cattle to one-half of one per cent or less, and bovine tuberculosis in the United States has been reduced over fifty per cent and in many places is practically non-existent.

Questions and Answers

P. F. G.: — "Is it safe for a middle-aged man to have an operation performed for double hernia, and can it be done without taking anesthesia?"

Answer—Yes, it is perfectly safe and most such operations nowadays are done without a general anesthetic, under local anesthesia.

E. B.:—"What shall I do for eye? The tear duct is stopped and my eye waters most of time."

Answer — This condition is known to oculists and should treated by the passage of a down the duct. The treatmen very successful and can be ca out in the oculist's office.

Like To Tell Other People What To Do? Here's a Tip: Dieticians Get Paid for It

A class of mothers learns about food values from a member of the New York Community Service Society's nutrition staff.

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

An anxious mother hushed the listless, whimpering child on her knee.

"He seems tired all the time," she said. "Won't eat his meals. Please tell me what to do."

And she listened eagerly while a calm, blue-eyed nutritionist told her how to fight with food the battle for her youngster's health. Milk . . . oranges . . . spinach . . . at least three eggs a week. The mother made notes on what she had learned and went away with new hope in her heart.

That's a snapshot of a relatively new and promising career for women. The career of the nutritionist. Field specialists say there is promise of jobs for more than are now so engaged.

Uncle Sam's program for national defense has laid stress on America's physical fitness and the Federal Security Agency's framework includes a committee on nutrition.

It's An Interesting Career

"The first line of defense is really the healthy individual citizen," says Dr. Grace McLeod, professor of nutrition at Teachers College, Columbia, and chairman of the New York Nutrition Committee. "People are giving more thought to nutrition than ever. This means new opportunities for nutritionists, dieticians and home economists. Their careers are among the most promising and interesting a woman can choose today."

Thousands of nutritionists work in the visiting nursing services, charitable societies, city health departments, Red Cross headquarters, industries, welfare councils and settlements of American cities. The New York Community Service Society alone has eleven.

Biggest end of their job is teaching. They speak before schools: "These foods build good teeth." Address department store employes: Coffee and doughnuts don't make a good work-day breakfast." Advise mothers who apply to the society for family food guidance: "Pork chops and potatoes every day don't make good healthy body builders." And they help low-income families meet their health giving food requirements.

Insurance companies employ nutritionists to write booklets on food values for policy holders. Some industries engage them to consult with employes on diet, with an eye to improving health and reducing lay-offs.

Just as busy are the dieticians, employed by thousands of hospitals and restaurants to plan menus and chart diets.

A third group of food experts—the home economists—is immersed in the problems of America's food producing industry. Many can be found in company kitchens working out new recipes for such things as peanuts, pineapples and canned foods.

$5,000 Isn't 'The Roof'

A few are handling some of the country's biggest jobs. Among them is Mary I. Barber, who for years headed the home economics department of the Kellogg Company (cereals) and now is food consultant to the United States Quartermaster General, with responsibility for 3,000,000 army meals a day.

Food experting like that requires careful training. Most of those now at work are college graduates, schooled in foods and cookery, chemistry, biology, budgeting, home management and social case work.

Their salaries range from $1,500 to $5,000 a year, but a number have done much better.

Hotel Staff on Job Total of 5,000 Years

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—If 275 employes of the Greenbrier hotel laid their years of service "end-to-end" they could go back to prehistoric days for reminiscence.

The group, whose aggressive service totaled 5,000 years, was recently awarded gold pins. Ninety-two other men and women employed between twenty and forty years had service amounting to 2,243 years and "newcomers," between ten and twenty years, accounted for 2,500 years more.

Arthur and Alice James, now retired, led the list with a combined total of 129 years. Arthur came to work at the old White hotel in 1871 and brought Alice here as his bride seven years later.

A. L. Terry, a groundkeeper, is still on the job after fifty-two years of duty.

The Ottoman Turks were named in honor of one of their early leaders, a man known as Osman or Othman. He might be called "the father of Turkey," but several other leaders also helped build up Turkish power.

Brier wood contains a high amount of salicylates in its fibers which makes it non-inflammable and so suitable for making pipes.

An American insurance company reports that air raids brought death to 2,437 children in England during 1940.

The Census bureau reports that $1,710,313 worth of artificial limbs were manufactured in 360 establishments in the United States in a year. Production of crutches amounted to $69,748.

THEY STILL RUN AWAY TO JOIN THE CIRCUS ---EVEN RICH ENGINEERS AND STENOGRAPHERS

By AMY PORTER
AP Feature Service Writer

NEW YORK—They told me that if I'd make myself very small and keep out of the way of ropes and horses I could wander around backstage at the circus.

I avoided the ropes and horses all right, but I fell over the tongue of Old King Cole's chariot. The man who picked me up said: "Do it like that again, and I'll put you in my act."

This man turned out to be Paul Jung, a producing clown. He dreams up his own acts and builds his own equipment, like the steam roller that flattens men out. He directs a flock of clowns and midgets, and thinks the circus has fallen on evil days because they don't sell balloons the way they used to anymore.

Tricks Of The Trade

It used to be, he told me, a balloon man would cut splinters in a balloon stick and put it in the hands of a child, and then pull so the splinters stuck, and the child cried, and his mamma thought he was crying for the balloon and bought it for him.

"Those," Mr. Jung sighed, "were the days."

But on the other hand, he said, meet the new Aquacade girls.

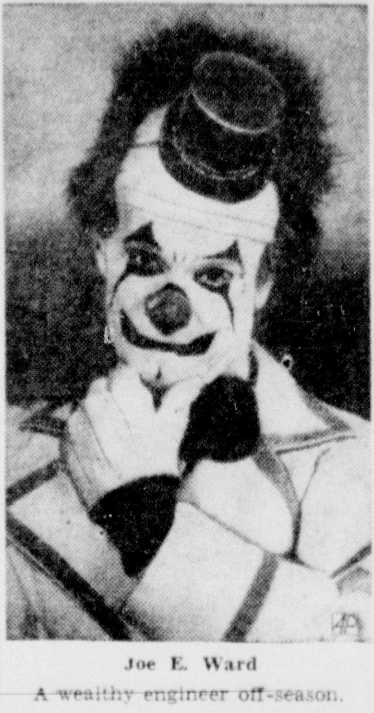
I met a half dozen girls, all circus performers for the first time. A smiling, healthy-looking one named Ottilie Schachtsiek said: "I was a typist and let me tell you this is sweeter."

It Beats Working

She was scared at first of climbing a 60-foot swaying rope ladder for the finale, but she got over that. She and most of the others had their first taste of show life at the World's Fair Aquacade, and now they never want to go back to selling and typing again.

In the next dressing room was the star aerialist, Elly Ardelty, a pretty little blonde, 4 feet 11, 98 pounds. Elly balances on her head on a high swinging-trapeze, with no net to catch her if she falls.

"I had a hard time making friends in this circus at first," she told me in accents gathered from Russia, where she was born, and France, where she lived for years. "They didn't like it because I wasn't born to the circus. But they warmed up to me after I fell and broke my hip and arm."



Joe E. Ward

A wealthy engineer off-season.

In the freak department, I got to talking to the fireball, Mr. Maysfield, who puts the flame of an acetelyne torch into his eyes.

He Would Learn Her

I asked if I could do it. He said. "I couldn't learn you, and don't think I'm making a mistake in grammar. Some people try to teach, but when I learn you, you know how. Want to try?" I said no, thanks, and the giant, Mr. Fisher, came up and said no, thanks, too.

The rubber man came over and started arguing about how much liquor a giant could hold. "I never drink,' said the giant, "but I couldn't get drunk anyway because I am so big I could hold 20 times as much as a little guy like you without feeling it."

Next I met Joe E. Ward, a clown who doubles as a consulting engineer in Texas.

"If you mention me," said Mr. Ward, "don't forget that my clown suit is orange and white, the colors of the University of Texas, my dear alma mater."

Other performers told me that Mr. Ward was a busy engineer and very, very rich, and doesn't drink tea, coffee, liquor, nor use tobacco, and his only diversion is being a clown in watever spare time he can get off from his work.

Drilling Child In Etiquette Is Important

Parents Should Not Neglect Teaching Youngsters Good Manners

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

No thoughtful parent will neglect the teaching of good manners to the child, since by means of good manners he may win and keep many friends. Anyway, the basic spirit of good manners is consideration for the rights and feelings of others—unselfishness.

Nevertheless, many parents nag so much at the child over manners that, instead of winning his cooperation they only arouse resistance and antagonism in him, with poor results. It is in relation to table manners that many conscientious parents are least successful. In all too many homes, the family eat to the tune of "Not so big bites! Lips closed! Sit up! Don't tip your chair! Use your napkin!" nothing else the whole meal through not a very cheerful dinner atmosphere.

The average mother expects far too much of the young child by way of table manners. She fails to realize that the youngster's lack of muscular control and coordination renders it hard to do well what he is expected to do, such as handling of the knife and fork. Here unreasonable demands not only hamper his cooperation and success but cause him sometimes, to dislike certain foods or to dawdle over his whole meal.

Many conscientious mothers would be more reasonable and successful at cultivating good table manners in their chilrhen, even in the toddlers, were these mothers not so serious about the problem.

Child's Limitations

Parents should get a knowledge of child development, then they will not ignore the young child's limitations in motor coordination and control. Children must not be judged by grown-up standards.

One celebrated writer says, for example, that "very few parents, pay enough attention to little children's table manners"; that "the average child can be taught to eat nicely at the age of two and a half, and beautifully at the age of three."

Perhaps he can but the mother who tries to make a child so young eat beautifully or nicely will almost surely have some eating problems on her hands and both she and the child may become patients of the psyciologist or psychiatrist.

The poised mother who doesn't nag at her child about table manners but only occasionally suggests how he can "do it better and be big," exercising good manners herself, is likely to have a child who will gradually acquire good manners.

There are a number of good books on manners for parents and their children to read A list of such may be had by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. After a child has been punished for some misdemeanor is it wise to bring up the matter later?

A. No; after the punishment has ended close the matter forever.

Q. Can a child read too much?

A. No; unless his reading interferes with ample time for outdoor fun with other children, and sharing in the home responsibilities, and provided he reads well selected and balanced material, and his eyes are not overtaxed.

Stocks Continue Recovery, but In Considerably Reduced Sales

Gains Run to a Point or More for Some of Favorites

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—Stocks generally continued the recovery push in today's market but without the vigor of yesterday's late upswing.

Gains ran to a point or so for favorites. Closing quotations in many instances were well under the tops, indicating some cashing in on the two-way advance.

The ~~war news still~~ was pessimistic and the shaping up of the new tax schedule in Congress was viewed as hardly bullish. Transfers of 485,090 compared with 474,500 the day before.

The tax problem was stressed at the Bethlehem Steel board meeting after the close. Directors voted a dividend of $1.50 on the common, the same paid in the preceding quarter, and revealed earnings of $2.95 a share in the three months again $3.02 in the initial 1940 quarter and $4.32 in the final period of last year. Provision for income and excess profits imposts, President Grace said, totalled $7,270,000 in the latest quarter compared with $2,855,000 in the same months a year ago. The stock was up more than a point at one time but ended with a plus of only ¼ at 70. U. S. Steel was off ⅜, Crucible ¼ was held by Great Northern, Chesapeake & Ohio, N. Y. Central and Nickel Plate common and preferred. Rails were among the best performers until near the finish.

On the forward tilt were General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Standard Oil of N. J., Loft, Westinghouse, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, United Aircraft and Anaconda.

Liggett & Myers "B" dropped 1⅝ and lesser declines were posted for J. C. Penney, Woolworth and General Electric.

Aluminum of America tacked on 2 points in the Curb, along with Carnation. Smaller advances were recorded for American Cyanamid "B," Humble Oil, Creole Petroleum and Sherwin Williams Volume here was around 63,000 shares versus 86,000 Wednesday.

Chicago Grain Prices

CHICAGO, April 24 (AP)—The wheat market's recent retreat came to an abrupt halt today as prices rallied about a cent a bushel.

With the pit well liquidated as a result of a 4 to 6 cents decline since April 5, selling was on a small scale and was more than offset by modest buying orders that came from previous short sellers or traders who were reinstating lines.

May wheat, which sold up to 90 cents, led the upturn, with some buying attributed to consuming interests. The close was ¼-1⅛ higher than yesterday, May 89⅞-90, July 87⅛-¼. Corn finished unchanged to ¼ up, May 67⅜, July 68; oats ⅛-⅜ higher; soybeans unchanged to ¾ higher; rye ½-1⅛ higher and lard 5-7 up.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

THERE WAS something vaguely sinister in the stranger's utter immobility; in his intent regard that was fixed upon the people in that lighted room, among them Donald's wife. Suddenly an almost unreasoning anger burned deep in Donald as he took a step forward, calling sharply, "Hey, you—what are you doing here?"

Instantly the man straightened, whirled, saw him, and plunged into the jungle. It was pitch dark there and Donald was unarmed. So he made no effort to follow. Instead, he went on into the house, carrying the violin case. Inside the living room door, he checked swiftly, saw that there were five men there, just as he had somehow known there would be.

"Did either of you step outside the window there just now?" he demanded.

They looked up, startled, and a chorus of negatives answered him.

"What's up, old man?" demanded Tom, coming swiftly toward him.

"It's probably nothing at all—some prowler," said Donald, and explained what he had seen. "Probably the boatman hanging around—" he added hurriedly, noting the white, frightened faces of the women.

"Yes, of course," Tom said with the same false heartiness. "There's nothing to be afraid of, people. And now, Mrs. Heath, we are all anticipating a treat."

June took her violin from Donald, but her eyes met his, questioning, worried. Donald smiled at her and said frankly, "Chances are I was mistaken. I probably didn't see anything at all. It could be that my eyes tricked me. That mango tree out there could look like an army with banners, if you wanted to look at it a certain way."

"Of course," said June, taking the violin from its case, cradling it beneath her chin, and drawing the bow across the strings.

Instantly the room settled to silence and absorbed attention. June played with an exquisite touch; the strength and fire of an artist, yet with the gentleness of a woman in love. And while she played, she held that roomful of people in the hollow of her hand, as she had held crowded concert halls throughout the country and abroad.

Donald, listening, felt his heart contract a little with pain. He was fully aware of her superb artistry, of her great talent that came so near genius. Had he the right to tie her down to life as the wife of an ordinary run-of-the-mill newspaper man? A man who might never be able to give her more than a small, cheap apartment, a grubby little suburban cottage; worries, bills, heartaches, anxiety—

The music stopped for just a moment. Then it began again—soft, delicate, yet somehow gay and laughing and tender; like a small silver brook chuckling away to itself as it tumbles down a mountainside on its way to be swallowed up in the sea. There was, somehow, the scent of small, secret flowers lighting the hidden places in the woods; the joyous song of nest building birds, and the song of a mother to her child—all tangled up in the melody June was playing. When she had finished, the others sat for a moment in complete silence, still gripped by the spell of that lovely melody.

"Thank you, my dear," said Mrs. Edmonds. There were tears in her faded eyes and no girlish coyness in her manner as she put her hand for a moment on the major's knee, to that gentleman's delighted surprise.

"That was beautiful," said "Coralie," her voice shaken. "I don't think I've ever heard it before. Who wrote it?"

June was flushed, bright-eyed, as she tucked the violin into its case. Her eyes turned to Donald's and clung as she said softly, "I did! And it hasn't a name yet. What do you think of "A Serenade to a Dearly Beloved?"

Donald stood up and walked to her side. He bent his head and kissed her simply, joyously, as though they were quite alone. And then, with his arm about her, he said to the others, "If you'll excuse us—it's been a lovely evening and a lot of fun!"

Terry and Bill followed, and then Lucy and Orwin.

Mrs. Edmonds was deep in a conversation with Betsy and Tom seized the moment to speak in a low voice to the major.

"If you have a moment, sir—" he suggested and indicated the terrace that lay outside the window.

The major looked at him keenly and followed him.

"This prowler that Heath saw, Major—what would you make of that?" asked Tom, without wasting time in preliminaries, or in an attempt to lead gracefully up to the subject.

The major looked at him for a moment before he spoke. "You are taking it for granted that Heath really saw somebody — that he wasn't mistaken?" he suggested.

"I'm afraid he wasn't mistaken," admitted Tom, frowning a little, "and yet it seems so cock-eyed. All I have to go on is that a certain very reputable business man wants to buy my share in the island—the controlling interest which was left to me by Mr. Markham on condition that the island be operated as a honeymoon retreat. I feel like a fool suggesting that a man like Morton Blake might attempt to frighten our guests away in the hope of making me sell. Gosh, Major, what a fool thing to suggest! I'm ashamed of myself. The prowler was a fisherman, or some such harmless party — just curious, that's all—"

The major nodded, though his eyes were narrowed a little.

"I suppose so. The other suggestion is rather fantastic," he agreed. "Wasn't there a clause in the will providing that the island should be a honeymoon retreat for several years—or at least until danger of a threat of invasion to the United States was over? I seem to remember something of the sort."

"Yes," said Tom. "The newspapers made all sorts of fantastic suggestions and hints and theories about that. But I think the whole truth of the matter was that Mr. Markham was rather sentimental about the island. He had planned it as a honeymoon spot for himself and the girl he loved, but she died on the way to the wedding. I think it was just that he couldn't bear the thought of the island being used for commercial purposes—a winter resort, a gambling casino, and all the rest of it, as Blake had planned it."

"Ah, yes, no doubt that's it," agreed the Major.

The voice of his wife was heard calling, and a moment later they had said good night and gone.

Tom closed the French windows and locked them, while Betsy stood at the front of the stairs, watching him. After a moment she said quietly, "Then there really WAS a prowler?"

"Oh, I don't think so—"

"Then why are you locking up—for the first time since we came to the island?" she demanded.

Tom had no answer to that. So Betsy went quietly about with him, helping him to lock up. When she reached the kitchen, she paused at the door of the refrigerator and looked startled. The door was partly open—and the box had been all but emptied of its provisions.

She and Tom stood for a long moment, staring at the rifled box, and then at each other; and neither of them spoke.

Called from Sick-bed To Bench

ELKINS, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—Twenty years ago this month a prominent Elkins attorney was summoned from his sick-bed and traveled some 160 miles to Martinsburg to take the oath of office as judge of the Northern district of federal court.

Since that day, Judge William E. Baker has not been absent from the bench for a single day during a regular term because of illness.

Judge Baker succeeded the late Alston G. Dayton. At Elkins he had been associated with the late Senators Stephen B. Elkins and Henry Gassaway Davis in law practice.

More Lime Used On W. Va. Farms

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—Lime was used more extensively in processing the soil of West Virginia farms last year than ever before a government official said today.

C. E. Stockdale, executive officer of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, said preliminary estimates indicated that West Virginia farmers used twenty-five per cent more ground limestone in the ten months the AAA program was operative last year than in all of 1939.

Farmers cooperating with the AAA program applied 340,000 tons in the ten months of 1940, against 271,830 tons in all twelve months of 1939.

"The use of lime," said Stockdale, "has made it possible for many farmers participating in the AAA farm program to grow needed soil-conserving crops.

Jean Arthur Raises Cain in Picture

Jean Arthur's latest starring assignment, that of Mary Jones in "The Devil and Miss Jones," starting tomorrow at the Liberty, gives her the crispy modern role of a clerk in a department store in which the employes are secretly engaged in an attempt to organize into a bargaining unit in the hope of forcing the employers to redress their wrongs.

Mary loves her job, but loves more her boy-friend, Joe (Robert Cumminugs), who has recently been discharged as the ringleader of the group attempting the formation of the union. His activities had reached a crisis when employes hung and burned an effigy of "the world's richest man," Merrick (Charles Coburn), the actual, but never-seen, owner of the establishment.

Merrick, hitherto unaware that he even owned the store in question—one of his thousands of holdings—is so angered by the insult, which has been duly played up in the papers, that, in order to ferret out and punish those responsible, he secretly joins the store's sales force, incognito. He is assigned to the same basement department in which Mary is employed, and she, thinking him a friendless old man, kind-heartedly takes him under her protecting guidance.

Such is the unique set-up in Norman Krasna's comedy of modern city life, which presents one of the most promising laugh-makers recently to come out of Hollywood.

Supporting Miss Arthur, in addition to Coburn and Cummings, who are top-featured, are Spring Byington, Edmund Gwenn, William Demarest and a Continental player of great repute in character parts, S. Z. Sakall; all these being featured.

Ziegfeld Girl Opens at Maryland

"Ziegfeld Girl" opened yesterday at the Maryland theater. Replete with everything that makes for motion picture entertainment, "Ziegfeld Girl" recalled the days of Hollywood's most opulent productions.

There are the screen's three most glamorous beauties Judy Garland, Hedy Lamarr, and Lana Turner, the girls whose lives the film unfolds. Teamed with them are James Stewart and Tony Martin. Never before have Judy Garland and Tony Martin sung to better advantage. Their number, "We Must Have Music," is one of the finest to reach the screen. Then, Miss Lamarr, turns in a haunting performance as the girl who prefers obscurity with the man she loves to glorification as a Ziegfeld beauty. Lana Turner takes full advantage of her finest dramatic role as the tragic Follies beauty and plays a death scene with such poignancy that it is sure to win a place among the screen's never-to-be forgotten scenes. Last, but not least, James Stewart, Miss Turner's down-to-earth truck-driver sweetheart moves still another step forward in his long string of screen successes.

Sharing honors with the principals are such names as Jackie Cooper, Ian Hunter, Charles Winninger, Edward Everett Horton, Philip Dorn, Paul Kelly, Eve Arden, Dan Dailey, Jr., Al Shean, Fay Holden, Felix Bressart and Rose Hobart. And reminiscent of Ziegfeld's own Glorified Girls are the 100 showgirls, who were chosen from 600 applicants from every part of the country.

Jinx-haunted Star Gets Scars, Bumps

Everything happens to Bob Hope—when he's making a picture. It seems he can't go through an entire picture without some mishap befalling him.

When the final scene on "Road to Zanzibar," the Paramount comedy-musical, last times today at the Strand theater, in which he is starred with Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour, was being shot, Bob had to turn his left cheek to the camera. His right profile had a few small fever blisters, which the makeup man was unable to efface.

The fever blisters were number ten in the line of misfortunes that have occurred during Bob's picture-making career. Bob's bugabboo is getting through the final scene of a picture without some accident marring his physiognomy and making it difficult to photograph.

In "Road to Singapore" Bob got a black eye just before the final scene.

The last scene in "The Ghost Breakers" found a loose beam falling on the comedian in a haunted castle, conking him on the head and laying him up for two days. The final scene in "The Cat and the Canary" resulted in Bob skining his forehead in a dark and narrow passageway and delaying production three days.

"Wild Man of Borneo" Featured at Embassy

Frank Morgan, after invading the field of dramatic acting in the "Mortal Storm" and frolicking in "Hullabaloo", is now to be seen at the Embassy in a new version of his "stuttery-fluttery" type of comic characterization in "The Wild Man of Borneo."

The versatile Morgan plays J. Daniel Thompson, medicine show spieler, who poses as a great dramatic star to deceive his daughter, becomes the autocrat of a theatrical boarding house, but is finally discovered to be holding down a job as the "Wild Man" in a dime museum. His medicine-show tricks, his constant trouble with two identities, his absurd attempt to enact Shakespeare, his antics as the "Wild Man," are coupled with comicalities by Marjorie Main as the boarding house maid-of-all work and the search of Connie Gilchrist and Bonita Granville for a defaulting alimony payer.

Billie Burke plays a former actress, owner of the boarding house, for whose favor Morgan and Donald Meek, as a vaudeville bird whistler, are rivals. Mary Howard plays Morgan's daughter in a romance with Dan Dailey, Jr., young inventor of a motion picture machine.

Action and Fun In Western Film

Entertainment honors go to Johnny Mack Brown's Universal western, "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," which is now at the Garden theater.

Throughout the film Brown battles and rides to score in the fast-moving dramatic sequences, and Fuzzy Knight registers his most impressive comedy role to date.

Nell O'Day and Kathryn Adams are the leading feminine players. New tunes and the title song are well done by Knight and the Rough Riders. Director Ray Taylor and cameraman Jerry Ash have given expert treatment to the screenplay by Sherman Lowe and Victor McLeod.

Cecil Kellaway, South-African born screenplayer featured with the star, Victor McLaglen, in Universal's "Diamond Frontier," now at the Garden, volunteered his services as a technical expert during production of the diamond-mining sequences of the picture.

Born in Cape Town, South Africa, where his father was a close friend to the great Cecil Rhodes, the "Empire builder," the actor was named Cecil in honor of Rhodes, who was his Godfather.

With "RED HOT AND LOVELY" ON STRAND STAGE Next Wednesday and Thursday

The "Ace" team, Nixon and Sans, will tell you that being funny is a serious business. No matter what the performer thinks, the audience is the final judge. And so, many times with regret, they have thrown away things they thought funny in favor of something the audience preferred. This formula has brought them years of success in Revues, Vaudeville and Music Halls. They are a very important part of "Red Hot and Lovely," the stage show coming to the Strand next Wednesday and Thursday. Other stars are The Three Ross Sisters, Star and Lee, comedy; "The Perry Twins," comedy dancing stars; the Gorgeous Ziegfeld Girls; Milt Henkin and his modern masters of music; Petite Annette and many others.

Officials and Strikers Rescue Negotiations

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—Representatives of the Interwoven Stocking Company and striking union members resumed negotiations today at the request of Governor Neely.

The strike began March 22 after a breakdown in discussions over demands by Branch 92 of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers (CIO).

The plant has been kept open however, and a disputed number of employes have been reporting for work.

The announcement of the conference said that a representative of the West Virginia department of labor also would attend.

There was no report from the conferees, headed by John F. Sheehan of the United States Department of Labor Conciliation Service, at the time they resumed discussions during the late afternoon.

Examiner Fred B. Haught of the state unemployment compensation department board of review adjourned until May 7 a hearing on claims of striking workers for jobless insurance benefits.

Jewel Dennison Becomes Bride of Edgar McFarland

Frostburg Couple Weds in Methodist Church in Grantsville

FROSTBURG, April 24—Mr. and Mrs. Allen Dennison, this city, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jewel Dennison, to Edgar U. McFarland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Upton McFarland, of Frostburg. The ceremony was performed Friday, February 21, at the Methodist church, Grantsville, by the Rev. Virgil Gillum, pastor. The attendants were Joseph Aldridge, National, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Davis, this city.

Mrs. McFarland wore a tan and brown ensemble and a corsage of yellow roses. Miss Davis was attired in a blue ensemble and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. McFarland, a graduate of Beall high school with the class of '36, is engaged in the wholesale candy business. His bride, also a graduate of Beall high school with the class of '36, attended Catherman's business school in Cumberland. She is employed at the T. and S. Drug Store.

Mr. and Mrs. McFarland will be at home shortly in a new apartment being erected at Wright's Crossing by Walter McFarland.

Stock Shed Destroyed

The stock shed, a large wooden structure of the Big Savage Refractories Corporation at Zihlman, was destroyed by fire Thursday morning, about 7 o'clock, the fire starting while the men were on their way to work on the morning shift. The loss is placed at about $7,000.

The Frostburg Fire Department prevented the blaze from spreading to other buildings. There was practically no damage to the bricks stored in the shed.

Marriage Is Announced

Miss Beulah Marie Wheeler and Paul Meginnis, both of Baltimore, were married Saturday afternoon at First Methodist church by the Rev. Edgar W. Beckett, pastor. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. Carter Shryock, this city.

Mr. Meginnis, an electrical engineer, was formerly associated with Mr. Shryock in business in Baltimore. His bride is a member of the Rev. Mr. Beckett's former charge in Baltimore.

Preceding the marriage ceremony, the bridal party were luncheon guests of the Rev. and Mrs. Beckett at the parsonage.

Plan Speed Ball Loop

A group of men and boys of the Methodist church interested in speed ball met Monday at the lecture room and appointed a committee consisting of William L. Plummer, Robert Crump, and James H. Smith to cooperate with other churches in organizing a city speed ball league. Another meeting will be held Monday, April 28, at 7:30 p. m., and will be open to all interested in the sport.

Green's Name Omitted

The name of S. W. Green was omitted from the list of county commissioners published Thursday morning as mentioned by William A. Gunter Wednesday evening at the Beall high school dedication when he commended the individual commissioners for their aid to the school.

Green, as chairman of the board and as a private citizen, has been one of the strongest backers of Frostburg's fight to secure a new school. The NEWS regrets the omission.

Thomas Morgan Dies

Thomas J. Morgan, 41, Baltimore, a former resident of Carlos, died Wednesday evening at St. Joseph's Hospital, Baltimore, from pneumonia. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Morgan, Carlos, and is survived by his wife, Mrs. Estella Morgan; two sons, Gerald and John, at home; three brothers, William, Carlos; David, National; Samuel, Lonaconing; four sisters, Mrs. Stephen Adams, Carlos; Mrs. Rudolph Lewis and Mrs. Clement Festerman, Consolidation Village, and Mrs. Chester Blubaugh, Cresaptown.

The body will be brought to the home of his brother, William J. Morgan, Friday.

Hold Open House

The open house held last evening by Frostburg Elks at their home, East Main street, was largely attended. A patriotic theme in colors of red, white and blue featured the ballroom decorations. Ralph Bender's orchestra played. The event will be repeated in the near future.

Rains Extinguish W. Va. Forest Fires

Trout Fishing Season Will Open Saturday on Schedule as Result

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 24 (AP) — The last of 400 forest fires which caused an estimated $500,000 damage in West Virginia sizzled out today, extinguished by rains that made possible the opening of the trout fishing season Saturday as scheduled.

State Forester Dan B. Griffin, while ordering his rangers to begin an immediate check of the extent of the flame-blackened areas, made a preliminary estimate that 80,000 acres of timber burned in th last ten days.

Until the wave of fires began, the spring season had been one of the best in the last decade, with only 20,000 acres of woodland burned over. Griffin compared the total of 100,000 acres to one of the worst seasons, the fall of 1939, when 131,000 acres were destroyed.

The fires, brought on by three weeks of dry weather, resulted in one fatality and the destruction of power lines, fences, numerous homes, a sawmill and a Randolph county schoolhouse.

More than 300 blazes were reported when the steady rains began yesterday.

Acting Conservation Commissioner C. W. Arbogast, who announced the fishing season would begin on schedule, called the rain "a life saver."

The wet weather, with a few days of warm sunshine, should advance vegetation sufficiently to eliminate the threat of major fires for the remainder of the official season, he added.

Midland School Lunch Project Will Continue

Committee Decides To Keep It Going for Remainder of Term

MIDLAND, April 24—Word was received today by the Midland Consolidated school lunch project committee that all WPA workers on the cafeteria projects in all schools of the county will be removed from the projects as of 3 o'clock this afternoon (Friday).

Due to a failure to receive an appropriation in time for the continuation the projects are being discontinued temporarily. Mrs. Dorothy Witherup, lunch room supervisor, has informed the committee that the suspension may be for two or three weeks.

The Midland School lunch committee, comprised of Mrs. John Robertson, Mrs. Ruth MacFarlane, Mrs. Robert Miller and Mrs. Edward Smith, in consultation with the principal, Robert W. Jones, decided to keep the Midland cafeteria operating for the remainder of the year, employing private workers.

The cafeteria to the Midland school has been in operation since February 16. Approximately 2,000 children have been served their lunch at school at the very nominal cost of ten cents. Over 3,000 lunches have been served free to under-nourished and under-privileged children.

Miss Belle Shaw, who has been at the head of the preparation of lunches at the Midland cafeteria, will in all probability be retained in private employment by the committee. Other workers will be selected to assist her.

The committee members feel that the present crisis in the George's creek area is such that a continuation of the lunch project is necessary, if even at a loss to the Parent-Teacher association.

Further information about changes in the cafeteria program will be given to the students this afternoon.

Bosworth Is Named Superintendent Of West Virginia State Police

Neely Appoints Him To Succeed G. H. Crumpecker, Who Dies Suddenly

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—John W. Bosworth, 32-year-old former member of the House of Delegates, became superintendent of West Virginia State Police today in succession to G. H. Crumpecker, who died twenty-four days after assuming the office.

Crumpecker, 59, treasurer of the Democratic state committee, twice sheriff of Mercer county and a former state Home Owners Loan Corporation manager, died early this morning from a heart attack. He had been ill a week.

Ten hours later Governor M. M. Neely's office announced the appointment of Bosworth, who recently was named chairman of the Unemployment compensation board of review.

Bosworth, a resident of Elkins, becomes the youngest man ever to head the farflung state police system with its complement of about 300 men.

There was no comment from the governor's office, other than the announcement of the appointment. Neely was not in the city.

The young superintendent, a Randolph county school teacher, served in the House in the sessions of 1937 and 1939. In partnership with J. Buhl Shahan, former state senator and now state director of purchases, he stumped for Neely in the 1940 primary and general elections.

On March 20 Bosworth was appointed chairman of the unemployment compensation board of review to succeed Ralph M. Hiner of Elkins. The salary of state police head is $6,000 a year. The post of board chairman pays $4,000.

Bosworth is a graduate of Davis-Elkins college and West Virginia University, and studied law in Paris, France, and American universities.

Crumpecker, who came to Charleston from his home in Princeton to succeed Col. C. C. Tallman on April 1, was stricken April 17 while on an inspection tour with Governor Neely at the picketed mining town of Widen, Clay county.

Martin Supporters Will Carry Fight To Senate Floor

West Virginia Democratic Intra-party Feud Now up to Senators

By HAMILTON FARON

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP) — West Virginia's Democratic intraparty feud probably will reach the Senate Monday in debate on an Elections committee report approving the appointment of Joseph Rosier to the Senate seat vacated by Governor M. M. Neely.

Supporters of both Rosier, appointed by Neely and approved by a 9-8 committee vote today, and his opponent, Clarence Martin, choice of former Governor Homer A. Holt, agreed that a sharp fight was in prospect before the Senate made a final choice.

"We lost in committee but we're going to take the fight onto the Senate floor," said Senator Chandler (D-Ky), leading supporter of Martin.

Mead Breaks Tie

Similar predictions of debate on the floor came from backers of committee-approved Rosier. Neither appointee was present.

Both sides cited the close vote in committee—a tie was broken only after a hurry-call went out for an absent member—as indication of how disagreements might develop on the floor.

Debate, some members said, might reopen the discussion of political differences between the so-called "Federal" and 'Statehouse" factions of the Democratic party in the state which was read into records of hearings on the appointments then deleted before the testimony was printed.

It was the clevage in the state Democratic party that led to the conflicting appointments of Rosier and Martin after Neely's election as governor while he still had two years remaining of his Senate term.

Neely entered the Democratic primary with the assertion he did so to unite the party. He defeated a candidate endorsed by the "State-House" group, and subsequently was elected.

But the disagreements continued. In midnight maneuvers with stop watches recording exact seconds, Neely took an oath of office in the first seconds of inauguration day last January 13.

At the same time, in another office, former Governor Homer A. Holt, also recording the exact time, signed a certificate of appointment for Martin. Holt contended that under state law he was required to fill a vacancy in the Senate. Such a vacancy, he asserted, existed between the time Neely relinquished his Senate seat and completed his oath of office as governor.

The whole question threatened for a time today to become more complicated. Sixteen members of the committee met to vote on whether an incoming governor or outgoing executive held appointive power.

No desire to debate the issue were evinced by the committee members. A vote was ordered. One by one they cast their ballots. The vote was tied, eight to eight.

A call was sent for Senator Mead (D-NY) only absentee. In about ten minutes he rushed into the committee room.

Half an hour elapsed while members explained their reasons for voting as they did. One declared the voters of West Virginia themselves had expressed endorsement of Rosier through election of Neely, who had declared in advance that he would resign and name his senate successor if elected as governor. Another, voting for Martin, asserted he felt it was not proper for a senator to control appointment of his successor. Others on both sides based opinions on legal points, on the split-second appointments.

Then came the announcement of the vote nine to eight for Rosier.

"It's up to the Senate now," said one committee member. "We'll try to get our report in on Monday. There'll be some strong debate, and only the Senate itself can finally decide the issue."

Monday morning the group will visit the Kitzmiller and Red House schools, continuing to Grantsville Monday afternoon. They will then go to Frostburg and other sections of Allegany county.

Accompanying the educators to Allegany county will be F. E. Rathbun, of the local board of education; Mrs. Caroline Wilson and Miss Kate Bannatyne, supervising teachers of the county.

Kopp, superintendent, Miss Lillian Compton, Miss Mildred Willison, Miss Winifred Green and Miss Jane Botsford, Allegany county; C. Allen Carlson, superintendent, and Miss Alice Mae Coulborun, supervisor, Somerset county; W. Theodore Boston, superintendent, and Miss Evelyn E. Johnson, supervisor, Dorchester county; W. Advised of Referendum

Farmers are being advised by letter of the national wheat referendum which is tentatively announced for May 31, from the office of the county agent, John H. Carter. Congressional act requires the referendum to carry by two-thirds majority; and should the referendum carry, it will affect all farmers whose normal yield exceeds 200 bushels of wheat.

Farmers of this county will be asked to vote for or against this referendum at four designated areas in the county.

If the referendum carries, the letter states, all farmers choosing wheat allotments and harvesting within their alloted acreage would not be subject to marketing penalties but would be eligible for parity and ACP payments. Should a farmer not choose an allotment he would be subject to marketing quota penalties if his normal production exceeds 200 bushels and he would not receive a parity payment.

The referendum provides a penalty of fifty cents per bushel in excess of the normal production on the farm and the farm would not qualify for the total payment of eighteen cents per bushel available for any allotment farm harvesting within their allotted acreage.

According to Carter a farm supervisor will be calling at various farms to assist farmers if they choose to have their farm listed as an allotment farm, but if the normal production exceeds 200 bushels the farmer would be subject to marketing penalties whether or not he had ever participated in the Agricultural Conservation program.

West Virginia Geography Made Easy For Blind Pupils at Romney School

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., April 24 (AP) — Touch a button, a bell rings, and you've found Charleston.

That's approximately the way an ingenious, new map works — a map made by members of the Huntington Camera and Radio clubs for use by pupils in the West Virginia School for the Blind at Romney. It was designed by Kelton Roten, an instructor at the school.

Made from a piece of pressed wood about two feet square, the map is designed for use through both touch and sound.

Members of the Camera club did the first part of the work. They photographed a map of the state and from this photo made a lantern slide. By means of this slide and a projector, they threw an enlarged image on the piece of wood. Outlines of the state and its counties then were drawn on the board with chalk, after which boundaries were cut with an electric stylus. Thus students can "see" by means of their finger tips the shape of the state and the comparative sizes of the counties.

To avoid crowding the map with Braille letters denoting the cities, an electrical wiring set-up was devised by Roten and installed by members of the radio club. It works like this:

A slate fastened to the upper right corner of the map lists in Braille the names of the eleven principal cities of the state, along with a number for each city. In the lower right corner is a switch with eleven contact points, each of which represents a city on the map. Beside each contact point is a Braille numeral that corresponds to the numbers on the slate.

The student selects from the slate the number of the city he wishes to find on the map and sets the switch at that number. Then he touches a testing wire to each of the raised dots that represent cities on the map. When he touches the right dot, a bell rings, and he has found the city for which he is searching.

Club members who made the map are students at Huntington Central high school. Working during study hours and after school, it took them two months to complete the project.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Widow Wonders about Suitor

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been reading some of your letters from complaining wives. They don't know how lucky they are to have a nice home and husband to work for them.

My husband was killed in an accident three years ago. We were married twenty-five years and were very happy. We shared everything together—sorrow, happiness, love and companionship. We always had joyous times on his day off, going fishing, hunting, or on trips with the children.

My two sons are in the draft, and I still have my daughter at home, but my life has been very lonely since my husband left. However, I've carried on for the children. Now I have met a man seventeen years older than myself. He loves me very dearly and wants to marry me. I love him but don't know whether he could take my husband's place. He has a good position and plenty of money. Also, he's divorced. Do you think I should take the chance?

VERY UNDECIDED

While you may become very fond of this older man, it's doubtful if he could take your late husband's place in your affections. I don't think that anyone completely takes the place of someone we have lost through death. We may become fond, even devoted, but it is not the same.

It would seem that the sensible thing would be for you to marry this man, even if he is older. Here are my best wishes to you.

Thirty-five Hereford bulls and nineteen heifers have been consigned to the sale, which will include a total of sixty-four purebreds of many varieties. Col. Earl Gartin of Greensburg, Ind., will be auctioneer, and Dr. E. A. Livesay of West Virginia university and Dr. C. D. Lowe of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the judges.

The sale, with the largest list of consignments in history, will be sponsored by the West Virginia Livestock Association with the cooperation of the State Agricultural Extension Division, State Department of Agriculture and the Upper Monongahela Valley Association.

Prize 4-H Hams Hit the Clouds

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—Prize hams and pieces of bacon cured by West Virginia 4-H club members not only grace the tables of the state's leading hotels but may soon be served in airliners winging through the clouds over the Mountain State.

The Upper Monongahela Valley Association, sponsors of the recent sale, said that the Pennsylvania Central Airlines had purchased several of the outstanding exhibits. They may be served on their new north-south route, which serves West Virginia.

The exhibits brought premium prices, and the wide recognition which has been given to the products may aid in encouraging a "baked ham industry" in the state, UMVA official said.

A leading state resort featured "West Virginia 4-H club champion ham baked in spinach" on one of its table d'hote dinner menus, the association said.

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9703

For the matron with really "womanly" proportions there's comfort, flattery and gaiety in this versatile Marian Martin Pattern 9703. In its street-length versions, it will make either a frock or a smock; in longer style it becomes a housecoat. The princess-line is flattering; the straight up-and-down seams are quick to cut and to stitch up—and especially becoming to the up-to-size-fifty figure. That full-length front buttoning is decorative too, with its spirited scalloped edge. The sleeves may be short or long; the collar and optional cuffs are smart in self-fabric or crisp contrast. If you're active about the house, you'll need all three versions of this quick-to-stitch style.

Pattern 9703 may be ordered only in women's sizes, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 dress requires 5 yards 36 inch fabric and ⅝ yard contrast.

Valentine Girl Returns Home From Hospital

Injured Christmas Night in Auto Accident; Driver Slated for Hearing

Margie J. Valentine, 12, of 469 Goethe street, was discharged yesterday afternoon from Allegany hospital where she was admitted four months ago today after being critically injured when struck by an automobile on the Bedford road, near Bortz's service station.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Valentine, suffered a compound skull fracture, a broken right arm and leg, and severe cuts and bruises in the accident which occurred Christmas night. She was struck by the machine driven by Virie Romaine Robinette, 18, of Bowman's Addition, a Celanese worker.

Officers Solve Case

It was believed that the girl was struck by a hit-run driver and Maryland and Pennsylvania authorities spent nearly a week searching for the "mythical car" before Detective Robert E. Flynn and Officer James J. Condon, of the city police, and State Troped B. C. Mason solved the case.

Robinette, traveling toward Bedford, Pa., at first told police his car was sideswiped by the hit-run machine, but later confessed being driver of the machine responsible for the accident.

According to police, Robinette signed a confession saying he sideswiped the car of Albert Zembower, of Bedford Valley, Pa., headed toward Cumberland, and that his own machine was turned completely around by the impact. Then his car struck Charles T. Carney, Jr., 18, of Louisiana avenue, who was standing near his father's car at the service station, and soon afterwards hit the Valentine girl, they added.

Released Under Bond

Carney was admitted to Memorial hospital for treatment, but was later released.

When arraigned later in trial magistrates court, Robinette was released under $500 bond on a charge of reckless driving, pending the outcome of the girl's injuries. He was fined $25 and costs on a charge of failing to report an accident within twenty-four hours to the commissioner of motor vehicles, but was acquitted of failing to stop and give assistance.

Development

silk worm and threatening to ruin the silk industry, Dr. Coughlin recalled. Pasteur, busy, assigned an assistant to the task, who found a way to stop the ravages of the diseases and was hailed as the industry's "savior."

Tells of Research Work

This assignment, however, carried his research further to find out how the silk worm produced silk. Determining that it was chiefly due to the worm's eating mulberry leaves, he reasoned that if the lowly worm could convert this, through chemistry, into silk, man could do likewise. Using mulberry leaves to obtain his cellulose, he succeeded in producing the first "artificial silk," which although not practical as developed then, was a great step forward.

Next came the viscose rayon industry, which uses cellulose, identical in chemical composition to cotton. Mass production was instituted about the time of the World war.

Development of Celanese

The development of celanese, the speaker declared, came after the World war, during which the company was making non-inflammable lacquer for airplanes. From this developed the massive textile industry of today.

There is a vast difference between viscose rayon and celanese, Dr. Coughlin went on, in that celanese is not just cellulose, but cellulose acetate. He pointed out many advantages inherent in this type of material.

Dr. Coughlin concluded by predicting further developments in the field as a result of continuing research by chemists.

Last night he was speaker at a meeting arranged by the retail merchants division of the chamber of commerce for merchants, cleaners and dyers and salesmen of celanese products.

Central Avenue Group Petitions Mayor for Street Black-Topping

Mayor Harry Irvine yesterday received a petition from a group of residents of Central avenue asking that the street be black-topped "without further delay or promises." Ira Finzel, 60, Of Frostburg Is Found Dead

Heart Ailment Is Fatal to Restaurant Man; Body Found on Mountain

Ira Finzel, 60, prominent restaurant man of Frostburg, was found dead about 7:30 p. m. yesterday two miles west of Frostburg on Big Savage mountain near Route 40.

Emory Rosenberger, who lives nearby, found the body while walking in the woods.

Finzel, according to members of the family, left his place of business about 6:30 p. m. to inspect road signs used to advertise his restaurant. It was believed he became ill and drove his car from the main highway to near a spring where he could get some water.

Rosenberger summoned Officer Benjamin Thomas, of the Frostburg police, who brought the body to Durst's funeral home in Frostburg. Dr. Linne Corson, deputy medical examiner, gave a verdict of death because of a heart ailment.

Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator, and Frank Gaffney, city detective on the Cumberlanad police force, also went to the scene.

Finzel had been in ill health for the past year of a heart ailment, members of his family said. He was a native of Finzel, in Garrett county and was the son of the late Ira and Sara Finzel.

Besides his widow he is survived by two children, Edward Finzel and Miss Grace Finzel, both members of the faculty of Beall high school, Frostburg.

Work on Billboard At Thomas Street Ordered Stopped

Work on the billboard which was being setup at Thomas street by the General Outdoor Advertising Company was ordered stopped by the city after a petition by nineteen residents of Thomas street had been received protesting against the construction.

City law provides that residents within 150 feet of a proposed billboard must approve. There was only one such resident but three signatures of approval of nearby persons was received.

Mayor Harry Irvine suggested that the company give up plans for the billboard at that site because he said if protests continue against billboards the city may have to prohibit them entirely.

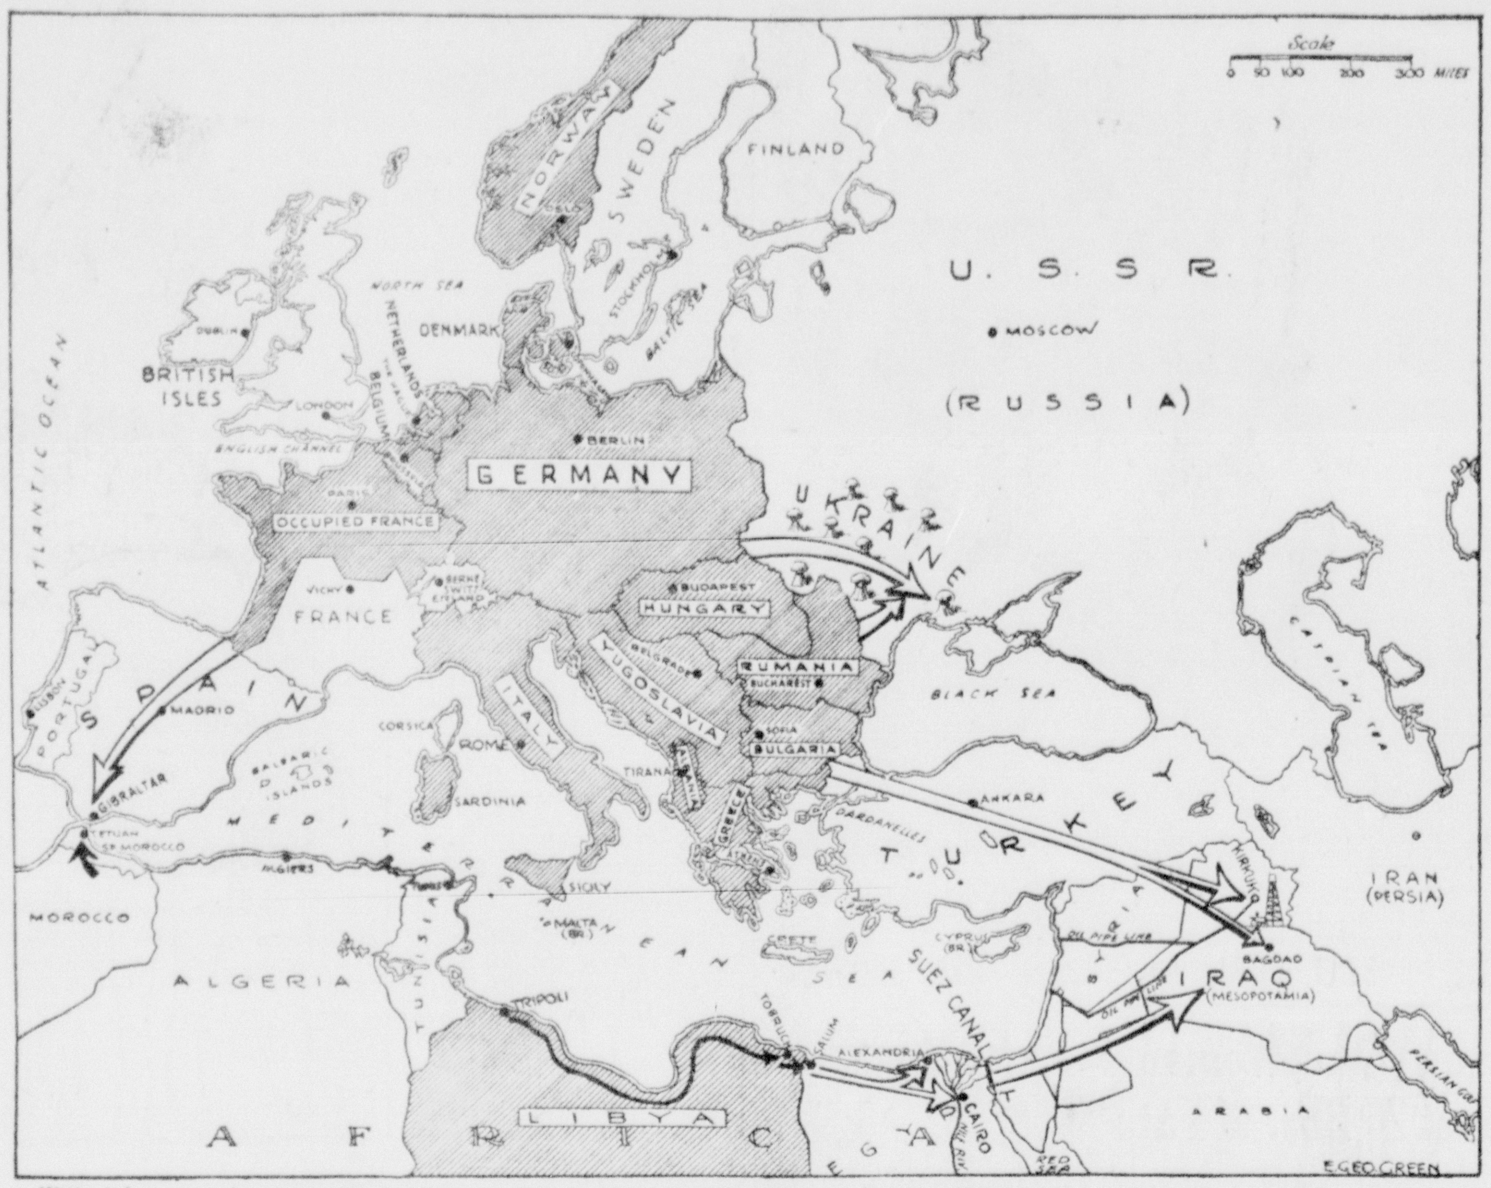
NAZI STRATEGY AIMS TO ENGULF MEDITERRANEAN, EASTERN OIL FIELDS



With defeat near for Anglo-Greek armies in Greece, the Axis has accomplished successfully another step in what appears to be a long-range campaign to secure complete control of the Mediterranean sea, cut Great Britain's "life-line" to the Far East and India, and secure possession of the oil fields of Iraq. Several moves now appear possible for the German high command and all of them have been rumored at least once from various European sources as the next possible Nazi step. One report is that the Germans may move into the grain fields of Soviet Russia's Ukraine district. Another is that the Axis may concentrate upon a two-pronged move to reach Iraq and to capture the Suez canal, continuing their thrust eastward from Libya and driving through Turkey. Stories emanating from Vichy say that German officials have sought Spanish permission to move troops through Spain to attack Gibraltar and close the western entrance of the Mediterranean, but Generalissimo Francisco Franco is said to frown upon this plan.

Steiding

needed as to the type of training being offered on its projects, since the class program was designed to be related to the actual work being done by the youths.

Short Notice Given

It was not until March 20, however, that word was received from H. M. James, supervisor of national defense training for the state department of education, that classes were to begin March 24, according to Steiding.

In those few days, he said, he was supposed to notify some 1,600 youths of the time and place of the classes. The youths work on staggered shifts, he pointed out—working a week, then laying off a week, and the task was a difficult one.

But the NYA sought in every way to encourage youths to attend the classes, he said, adding that it has no authority to compel attendance. Copies of class schedules were mimeographed and posted on all projects, and large numbers of copies were distributed among youths over the entire county, he went on. In addition to this, the youths were assembled by the project supervisors and their attention called to the classes.

Steiding admitted, however, that although registration and attendance were good at first, youths have been dropping out of the classes. He said he did not know the reason for this, but that some of the youths he interviewed expressed "disinterest in the type of instruction offered."

Kopp Is Praised

It was indicated by Schuller that the classes, as conducted, failed to carry out the plan of relating themselves to the actual work on which the youths were engaged in the NYA shops.

Steiding went on to say that his remarks were intended to reflect in no way on Charles L. Kopp, Allegany county superintendent of schools, who, he said, has been very co-operative.

"If the co-operation of the state department of education officials were comparable to that of Kopp," he said, "the related training classes here would be working smoothly and efficiently and carrying out the purposes intended by Congress."

The official emphasized that they were greatly interested in the success of the training classes and insisted they had done their part.

Tour Planned Today

They added, too, that they were at a loss to explain the information on which Seidel and Mrs. Bauernschmidt based their charges. Neither has been here in more than a year, they said, and neither have sought information from the NYA office.

In an effort to refute this criticism, Steiding announced that public officials of the county have been invited to accompany him and the county NYA advisory council on a tour of projects today. The group is expected to include Simeon W. Green, chairman of the board of county commissioners; Fred Z. Hetzel, of the Cumberland office of the Maryland State Employment Service; Mayor Harry Irvine of Cumberland; Mayor D. Clarkson Laird of Lonaconing; City Commissioner William J. Edwards of Cumberland; and City Commissioner William Lemmert of Frostburg.

TELEPHONE COMPANY LOSES APPEAL CASE

A circuit court jury yesterday reversed trial magistrates court decision and awarded damages of $47.85 to Frank W. Schilling in his suit against the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

Schilling claimed the damages on the ground that a telephone company truck crashed against the door of his car as it was being swung open by an occupant, John Ritchey, while parked on Pearre street near Shriver avenue. The company denied liability, asserting that the truck was nearly past the car when the door was swung open, hitting the rear of the truck.

Charged with embezzling postal funds, Lester J. McKenzie, about 52, of Cresaptown, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett and then committed to the county jail in default of $1,000 bond for action of the Northern district federal court, Wheeling, W. Va.

McKenzie was a former rural mail carrier working out of Ridgeley, W. Va., when the alleged embezzling took place. He was indicted last week by the federal grand jury at Wheeling.

At yesterday's arraignment McKenzie waived removal to the West Virginia federal court. He will be taken to Wheeling Saturday, Keith E. Moyer, postal inspector who preferred the charge, said yesterday.

Treasury Offers New Defense Tax, Hits Sales Plan

Also against Pay Roll Tax for Proposed Heavy Imposts

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP) — The treasury presented its new defense tax schedules to the House Ways and Means committee today and through Assistant Secretary John L. Sullivan argued emphatically against the substitution of a pay roll tax or a sales tax for the proposed heavy imposts on incomes.

Sullivan faced the committee after Secretary Morgenthau, flanked by seventeen assistants, had urged that the prospective $3,500,000,000 increase in tax revenues be accompanied by a billion dollar reduction in non-defense expenditures. He thought such a cut not only highly desirable but clearly possible.

Small Price To Pay

As for the $3,500,000,000 in new taxes, he said it was a "small price" to pay for liberty. There is a possibility, he asserted, that "war may spread to this country."

The session opened the committee's public hearings on the new tax bill. Spectators crowded the big committee room, and included the usual large proportion of representatives of business organizations who always put in an appearance when taxes or the tariff are up for discussion.

As presented by Sullivan the proposed schedules closely conformed to advance announcements of what they would contain: income surtaxes starting at eleven per cent and affecting all brackets, new and increased excise taxes, boosts in the corporation, estate and gift taxes. The income levies of many individuals would be increased six fold.

The question of a payroll tax and tax on salaries was raised by Representative Knutson (R-Minn), who read a telegram from the Small Businessmen's Association, urging the imposition of a five per cent levy of this nature.

Collection Difficult

Sullivan answered that the treasury had considered such a tax, but finally abandoned it in view of the difficulties of collecting the tax from farm labor and professional people. Because of those difficulties, he said, it would discriminate against the wage earners.

Knutson also asked about a sales tax, and Sullivan referred him to a passage in his previously read statement. A sales tax, he said, would necessitate an elaborate and costly agency for its administration. It would add to the complexity of the tax structure and, unless present excises were repealed, bear too heavily on some people. He also asserted that it would conflict with state and local sales taxes to a much greater extent than the proposed excise levies. "We have come to the conclusion that it is inadvisable to risk the dislocations in business and elsewhere which a general sales tax would occasion."

Morgenthau asked that Congress "reexamine with a magnifying glass those expenditures which are neither for the purpose of defense or relief and security from want."

No "Business as Usual"

"We are continuing," he said, "to spend in these non-defense and non-relief fields as if we had no emergency defense program, as if we could superimpose our huge rearmament effort upon government as usual and business as usual. This was all right before the existing emergency and while there continued to be a large volume of available unemployed resources. But we simply cannot carry on business as usual and government as usual from now on and still take adequate care of our defense needs."

Questioned later by committee members, he said he thought a billion dollar saving could be effected. He recommended particularly that Congress look into the agricultural appropriation bill, the Civilian Conservation Corps and the National Youth Administration.

TEAMED FOR FIRST TIME

James Stewart won an Academy Award for his acting in "The Philadelphia Story," and there are a lot of people who think Lana Turner will be eligible for an award herself as the result of her outstanding performance in "Ziegfeld Girl," which opened yesterday on the Maryland screen. The two are romantically teamed in the spectacular new musical, which also stars Judy Garland and Hedy Lamarr.

BACK FROM THE BEACH---VIA SUBWAY

Plebeian pleasures are the lot of these merry-makers from "The Devil and Miss Jones," starting tomorrow at the Liberty, and the fact that one of them is a millionaire in disguise makes no difference. Charles Coburn and Spring Byington, both featured, and Jean Arthur, the star, are the players shown in this scene from the RKO Radio picture of modern metropolitan life.

Schenck Sentenced

ver Moscowitz that the case was "in no sense a technical case; it is a case of fraud and fraudulent practices."

Correa called Schenck a "cheat," his tax practices "a system of chiseling" and described Schenck's wealth as an "aggravation" of his guilt.

Sentenced with Schenck was the movie magnate's Eastern representative and talent scout, Joseph Moskowitz, who was fined $10,000 and ordered imprisoned one year and a day on conviction of abetting Schenck in his 1936 evasion.

wherever resistance will be most effective.

"In my judgment our safety and security require that, in accordance with the declared policy of the legislative and executive branches of the government, aid must be supplied without hesitation to Great Britain and those other countries that are resisting the sweep of the general conflagration.

"This policy means, in practical application, that such aid must reach its destination in the shortest of time and in maximum quantity.

"So—ways must be found to do this."

Secretary Hull declared that the desire to continue "ordinary ways of business must yield to the needs of the crisis" and asserted that "individuals and groups have no right at this time to think or act primarily in terms of their personal interest to the detriment of the general national good."

"What we do," he said, "in the production of the fighting instruments needed by ourselves and by the free countries of the world now becomes a measure of our intelligence."

Sees Colossal Danger

Asserting that the defeat of the British and "delivery of the high seas to the invader would create colossal danger to our own national defense and security," the secretary of state said:

"The breadth of the sea may give us a little time. It does not give us safety. Safety can only come from our ability, in conjunction with other peace-loving nations, to prevent any aggressor from attaining control of the seas."

He spoke strongly against any attempt to make a peace now, asserting that peace with the Axis powers would be "nothing more than a trap—a trap into which many nations fell in earlier phases of this movement for world conquest when its true nature was not understood."

On the possibility that aid to Britain and others might "irritate some aggressor into attacking us," Hull declared no nation would attack merely because "it is our policy to defend ourselves" nor "let us alone merely because we attempt to placate them."

"In the philosophy of the conquerors," he said, "an attack is justified whenever and wherever it looks easy and convenient and serves their purposes.

"There is no possible safeguarding our security except by solid strength, placed when and where it is most effective."

Calling the roll of conquered nations down to Yugoslavia, Hull declared that no country could feel safe from attack "any more than, in a town overrun by bandits, the wealthiest citizen might expect to be free from attack."

Charges Barbarism

The "would-be conquerors," he said, employ "every method of barbarism" and "every resource of organized fiendishness" to "subjugate and cow the individual and to use the conquered territory as a springboard for new aggressions."

To wait, he said, until armed forces of an "invader shall have crossed the boundary line of this hemisphere, including the United States, until the invading countries had acquired complete control of the other four continents and of the high seas and thus had obtained every possible strategic advantage, reducing us to the corresponding disadvantage of a severely handicapped defense."

"This is an utterly short-sighted and extremely dangerous view," he asserted.

not deny that the operation of defense work now in the plants involved can easily be carried forward independently of other production."

In a prepared statement Thomas and Reuther asserted that the corporation was "attempting to use its highly profitable national defense orders as a smoke-screen behind which to conceal its refusal to make reasonable concessions involving wage rates, union recognition and other matters."

Meanwhile, union and corporation officials continued their negotiations on the union's demands for a ten-cent hourly wage increase, union shop recognition, greater powers for the labor umpire authorized in the existing contract between General Motors and the UAW-CIO and approval of a revised shop steward system.

No New Air Routes During Emergency

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board announced today it would not authorize any new air routes during the present emergency unless the army and navy agreed there would be no interference with the defense program.

"The restriction of the certificates (for new routes) is made necessary by the defense needs which require a limitation of the number of planes available for new transport services. The manufacturing resources of the country are being concentrated upon the production of planes for military use," the board said.

"The restriction which is to apply to the new route certificates or amendments to existing certificates providing for extension of services will not apply in cases which involve only an additional intermediate point on a route and not, therefore, require additional flight equipment."

More than 100 applications for new route certificates now are pending before the board.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT WAS HIS REASON?

THAT IS a pretty good question to ask whenever the opening leader picks something different from what you expected. Was he trying to give his partner a ruff, because he held so many in the suit he led? Was he hoping to get a ruff himself, because he had just a singleton or doubleton? Was he trying to knock an entry out of the dummy? Or to stop ruffs by your side? Or to avoid leading away from guarded honors elsewhere in his hand? Somewhere among these or similar questions will lie the answer, unless he was merely making a fancy lead hoping for either a break of luck or the chance of befuddling you.

North could hardly be blamed for reaching out for the grand slam when he learned his partner had the aces of both spades and diamonds, via the Blackwood convention, though the bid was a bit risky. He had been through a disastrous evening of rubber bridge, and wanted to catch up with a nice grand slam premium. Unfortunately, he placed too much trust in his partner's playing ability.

West led the club 3, and South began to play without making any plan. He took it with dummy's A, led to the diamond A and returned his other diamond for a ruff, led to the spade K and was happy to see the Q drop, then raked in the spade A and J to settle the hostile trumps. When he played now to the club K, West's failure to follow suit showed him he was beaten, as he later had to lose a club trick to East.

If South had studied a bit after the club lead, he would have wondered why West did not lead his partner's diamond suit. Surely it could not be because he had four of them. It must be because he had a singleton. Regardless of which it was, South could have set up a fifth round heart by embarking on a ruffing process at once, hoping for the kind of suit division he really found in hearts. After three ruffs, the J would have been good for a discard of the fourth club in South's hand, and the contract would have been made.

Local Fans To See Champion Bowler

Devotees of the tenpin type of bowling are expected to flock to the Silver Lanes, Cresaptown, this afternoon and the Roxy Bowling Center here in the evening to see Joe Miller of Buffalo, N. Y., recognized as the sport's leading instructor and undisputed champion of champions, do his stuff with the big sticks.

Miller's program, at the Silver Lanes will start at 3 o'clock with Paul Mannick and Doug Breedlove opposing the "Buffalo Bomber" in match competition. The champion is billed to appear against John Rosenmerkel and "Butch" LaNeve at the Roxy at 9 o'clock. Exhibitions of trick bowling and a period of instruction will follow matches at both places.

Fort Hill Breaks Five Records To Win Meet

Billy Lynch Is Star with Two New Records

Also Swims on Record-breaking 160-Yard Free Style Relay Team

Riding the crest of five new records Fort Hill high school swimmers won the thirteenth annual city scholastic swimming meet last night at Central Y. M. C. A. pool with 34 points. Allegany was second with 28 and LaSalle high was last with eight markers.

Individual brilliance was shown by "Billy" Lynch who cracked the record in the diving event with 65.3 points to eclipse the old record of 64.55 set by Bill Taylor of Allegany in 1939.

Lynch Is Outstanding

Lynch broke the 40-yard backstroke record with a slashing victory in the time of twenty-four and four-fifths seconds. He also swam as a member of the record-breaking 160 yard free-style relay team.

Smith in the 40-yards free-style broke the record of twenty-one and one-fifth seconds set by Jim Pitzer of Allegany in 1934. The new mark is twenty and four-fifths seconds.

The results follows:

40-Yard Free Style

Smith, Fort Hill, first; McCoy, Allegany, second; Lafferty, LaSalle, third. Time 20 and four-fifths seconds (new record).

40-Yards Breast Stroke

Wright, Allegany, first; Baker, Fort Hill, second; Seefeld, LaSalle, third. Time 31 and two-fifths seconds.

40-Yards Back Stroke

100 Yards Free Style

Ginneman, Fort Hill, first; McCoy, Allegany, second. No entry from LaSalle. Time 1 minute, two and one-fifth seconds. (New record.)

Diving

120 Yards Medley Relay

Allegany (Oswald, Wright and Hines) first. Fort Hill second; and LaSalle, third. Time one minute, twenty and two-fifths seconds.

160 Yards Free Style Relay

Fort Hill (Lynch, Smith, Hixon and Ginneman) first. Allegany, second; LaSalle, third. Time one minute, twenty-nine and four-fifths seconds. (New record).

Officials were Edwin L. Kuhn, referee; Arthur G. Ramey, starter; James W. Bishop, scorer; William J. Armbruster, announcer; Foy A. Curry, John J. Cavanaugh and Brother Eugene, timers; Robert H. Diggs, William J. Bender and William Taylor, diving judges; William H. Lewis, Bender and Elza Nave, finish judges, and Diggs, inspector of lanes and turns.

Maryland Loses To West Va. 10-2

College Park Team Drops Tenth Game Out of Thirteen Tries

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 24 (AP)—West Virginia collected 19 hits from four University of Maryland pitchers today, handing Maryland's ball team its tenth defeat in thirteen tries by a 10 to 2 score.

The old liners opened the scoring in the last of the second when England walked and was driven home by Wharton's single. The Mountaineers tied the game in the first of the third when Hockenberry circled the bases after Dwyer misjudged his long fly to right field.

West Virginia picked up two more runs in the fourth, then combined four hits with two hit batters for five more tallies in the fifth.

Maryland scored again in the eighth. The Morgantown team wound up its scoring in the first of the ninth with two more tallies.

Allegany Nine Defeated 8 to 6 By Hyndman Crew

Nine Walks and Timely Hitting Proves Too Much for Blue and White

HYNDMAN, Pa., April 24 — Allegany high school tossers lost a tough game to the battling Hyndman high nine here today by an 8 to 6 score. Nine walks and several timely hits won for the Keystone state lads. In the first inning Hyndman got two men on base by virtue of a single and a walk. Bob Williams, Allegany right fielder dislocated his knee in going after a high fly ball and two men scored.

The Blue and White tallied after Bob Williams singled and Athey doubled in the first inning. A hit coupled with several walks gave Hyndman two more runs in the third inning. Allegany came back with three runs in the fourth to tie the game up. Three singles and a base on balls gave the Marylanders their three tallies.

The game was won by Hyndman in the last of the fourth inning when they bunched several hits and walks to score four runs. Allegany came back the next inning to score a run but that ended the run-making for both teams.

Kintor who had been playing right field for Hyndman, replaced Evans on the mound in the fourth inning to strike out six Allegany batsmen. Miller and Robertson pitched good ball for Allegany but nine bases on balls was too much added baggage for the Campobello boys. The lineups.

Tigers Defeat St. Louis 4 to 2

DETROIT, April 24 (AP)—Frankie Croucher, promoted from the Detroit Tigers bench, celebrated today by tripling in the sixth to drive home two runs and beat the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 2, and reward Tommy Bridges for a good pitching job.

The drives by Croucher, who replaced Dick Bartel at shortstop yesterday in the Tigers' efforts to get more hitting, brought Detroit out in front, and Rudy York clinched the victory by walloping his third home run in the seventh.

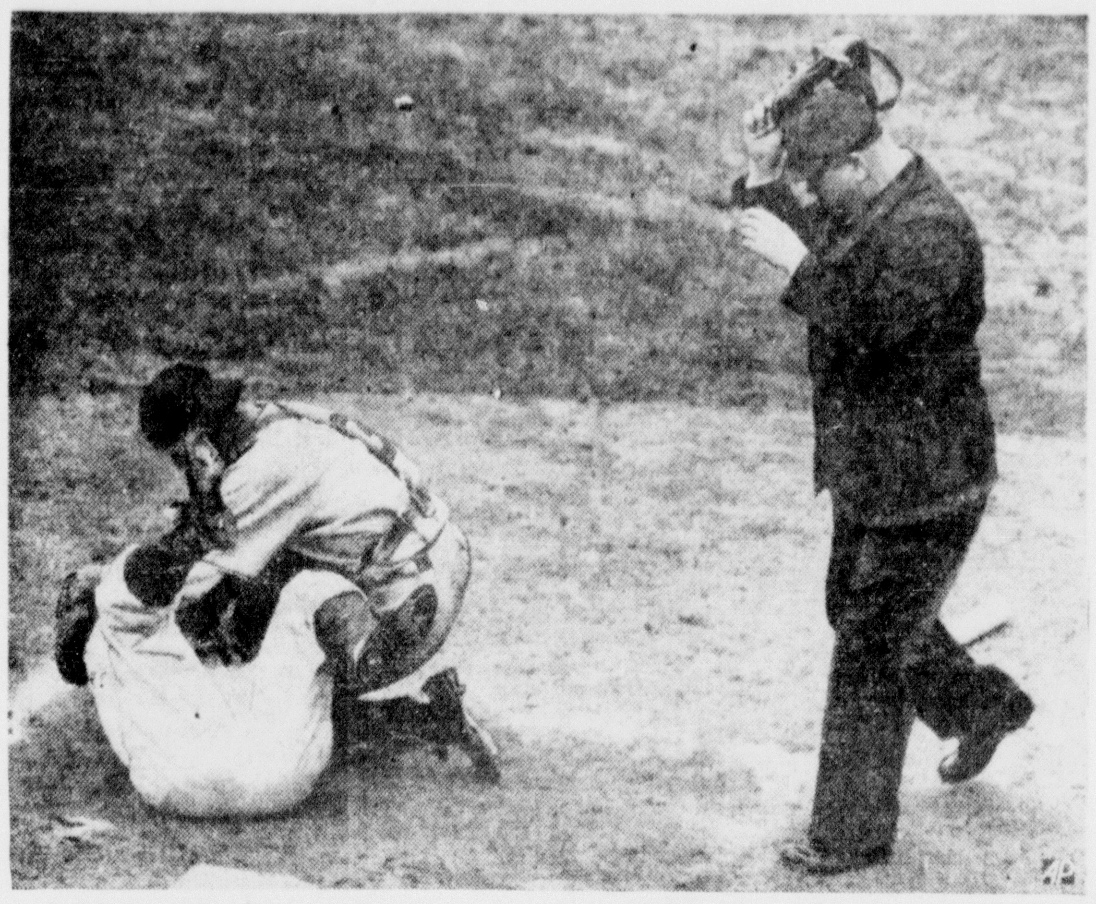
DODGER SLUGGER HIT BY PITCHED BALL



Pete Reiser, slugging outfielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers, lies on the ground after being hit by a ball pitched by Ike Pearson of the Philadelphia Phillies in the third inning of the game in New York. He suffered a severe bruise on his right cheek. Bending over Reiser is Tommy Livingston, Phillies catcher. Hurrying to the scene is Umpire George Magerkurth. Brooklyn won the game, 4-0.

Yankees Go Into First Place in American League

Defeat Red Sox 6 to 4 To Make Sweep of Two Game Series

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP) — The Yankees bombed their way into first place in the American League today by downing the Boston Red Sox 6 to 3 for a sweep of the two-game series.

Marius Russo's steady seven-hit southpaw elbowing and a ten-hit attack, featured by Charley Keller's three-run homer, were the winning factors. It was Russo's second victory of the year.

Emerson Dickman lasted until the sixth inning for the Sox, when he was taken out after being charged with all the Yankees' runs.

The Bronx Bombers won the game by their old trick of bunching their scoring. They counted in only two frames—the third and the sixth—but each time they did it in threes.

Dario Lodigiani's triple with two Sox runners on base in the seventh gave the Chicago team its only runs. Lodigiani's hit was the third off Smith, who was removed for a pinch-hitter in the first of the eighth.

All the Di Maggios Are Pretty Hot Now

NEW YORK, April 24—Owing to the present distribution of DiMaggios, you will never find more than two DiMaggios in one ball park at the same time, except perhaps in the all-star game. Right now the Yankee stadium is advertising two, the maximum.

Both of them, Joseph Paul, of the Yankees, and Dominick Paul, of the Boston Red Sox, are as hot as prairie fires at the moment. The third DiMaggio, Vincent Paul, is also very hot, but his combustion is confined by law to National League arenas.

All three DiMaggios were hitting better than .400 the last time we cast up the figures. At this time of year, batting averages are subject to change of 100 points or more without notice, because the season is just beginning—but it's a safe bet that the three DiMaggios will continue to terrify pitchers all year long.

Time was when Vincent, the oldest brother, was a strikeout king, but this flaw has been rectified, and today Vince drums the fences with great regularity and the family has no weakness.

Praise for Dom

With the Red Sox meeting the Yankees, you naturally watch and compare Joe, the big fellow with the stooping shoulders and loping stride, and Dominick, the compact little guy with glasses. Mr. J. Edward Cronin, Dominick's manager, believes the little guy comes out of this comparison very well.

"I was one of the first boosters for Joe DiMaggio," says Mr. Cronin, "and I never denied that Joe is the most valuable player in this league, but the more I see of Dom, the surer I am that he can do pretty near everything that Joe can do.

"I say pretty near. He's not as big as Joe, and he hasn't got that power in the shoulders and wrists. Joe hits a longer ball, and he'll get more hits through the infield, because his wrists give the ball that extra jump that sometimes brings base hits out of a late swing or an off-balance swing. Joe is murder on pitchers.

"But I figure Dominick, being a little fellow and a sharpshooter, and a trifle faster getting down to first, will be on base as often as Joe. And in the field, he's just as good—speed, arm, judgment, everything. Why, all you have to do is watch them. Dom is making the same plays, and making them just as easy."

The Yankees do not agree entirely with Mr. Cronin on this point of fielding. Joe McCarthy and his coaches argue that the big DiMaggio, their DiMaggio, can out-field his small brother.

"The little fella has to scramble for balls that Joe can take in stride," says Coach John Schulte. "Dominick will get the ball, see, but he'll just barely get it. He won't be in position to throw. Joe is set to throw to any base the second he makes his catch, no matter what kind of a catch it is."

Joe Almost Hits At Will

There is no doubt that Joe DiMaggio, just now, is the nearest thing to a one-man Panzer attack that the world knows. When he gets up against the superior pitchers in the western half of the American League, the hits will not come so easily as they do now. No player in baseball, Cobb, Ruth, Hornsby, Wagner, Lajoie, or any other, has been able to hit the ball at will, and it's hardly likely that DiMaggio is an exception, unless he be kin to Superman or Popeye the Sailor.

But up to date this season, Joe has done almost exactly that! Hit the ball at will. It is pitiful to see a mediocre pitcher attempt to pitch to him. And without Joe's bat, I begin to suspect that the Yankee attack, against good pitching, would be somewhat on the mediocre side itself.

Only one man has pitched well against the Yankees so far this season! Chubby Dean, of the Athletics, some ten days ago. On that day DiMaggio was responsible for the only solid hits and the only run his team made.

The subject of which DiMaggio does which things best will be easier to discuss when we have more data on Dominick. On Vincent, we have a pretty complete line—he hits as long a ball as Joe, fields about as well, throws perhaps a shade better, but does not get on base anywhere near as often.

Vince is a useful ballplayer, Joe is a great one, and Dominick may be a great one too. Already the DiMaggio family has forced the Delehantys, the Waners, and the Meusels to move over. It's the toughest family baseball has ever known.

Dodgers Defeat Phillies 6 to 1 As Hamlin Stars

"Hot Potato" Turns In His Second Straight Fine Hurling Job

BROOKLYN, April 24 (AP)—Luke Hamlin, the "hot potato" pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, turned in his second straight low-hit hurling job to down the lowly Philadelphia Phillies 6 to 1 today before a cozy gathering of 2,518 customers.

Downing the cellar-occupants for the second day in a row, the Dodgers settled the issue early with a two-run attack in the second inning, headed by Dolph Camilli's fourth homer of the year.

Pittsburgh Downs Chicago Cubs in Eleven Innings

Infield Hit by Rip Collins Gives Pirates 2 to 1 Victory

PITTSBURGH, April 24 (AP)—An infield hit by Rip Collins with the bases loaded gave Pittsburgh a 2 to 1 victory in 11 innings today, breaking a four-game losing streak for the Bucs.

The veteran southpaw Larry French appeared to have the game well in hand until the ninth when Bob Elliott doubled with one out. Vince DiMaggio, who won the only two previous Pirate victories with home runs, popped a little fly into left center which fell between Dominic Dallessandro and Louis Novikoff for a two bagger, scoring the tying run.

A9 low throw by Myers in the eleventh put DiMaggio on base and started the winning rally. Frankie Gustine popped a single to center and Spud Davis was passed intentionally, paving the way for Collins' smash.

Dick Skeen Goes To Semi-finals In Open Tourney

Defeats Karel Kozeluh after Latter Gives Him Bad Scare

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 24 (AP)—Second seeded Dick Skeen of Los Angeles advanced to the semi-finals of the U. S. open tennis tournament today by defeating Karel Kozeluh of Daytona Beach, Fla., 6-4, 6-4, 7-5.

Skeen, a pre-tourney favorite to meet Fred Perry in the finals, exhibited more accuracy and sureness in the match than in previous tournament play.

Kozeluh, who appeared hopelessly beaten in the last set, gave Skeen a scare by forcing error after error from his opponent to pull up two games and make the score 5-all.

Rallies and Wins

Skeen, however, rallied and gave up but two points in winning the last two sets.

Jon Kozeluh of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., gained the right to meet Perry in quarter-final play tomorrow when Al Chapin of New York was forced to default.

Kozeluh was leading Chapin by two sets yesterday when rain halted play.

Herman Peterson of Fisher's Island, N. Y., was eliminated by Walter Senior of Louisville, Ky., in a fast battle. Senior took the first two sets with ease but was forced to win the third by an 8-6 score.

Doubles Results

In doubles play, Frank Rericha of Stamford, Conn., teamed with Peterson to oust Ed Stillman of Pinehurst, N. C., and Herbert Stead of Harrisville, R. I., 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

Rericha and Peterson will meet Lloyd Budge of Lake Forest, Ill., and John Hendrix of Coral Gables, Fla., who advanced on a default by Chapin and Frank Hunter of New York City.

Skeen and John Faunce of Hollywood, Cal., teamed to trim Ray White of Glenview, Ill., and Bill Heth of Hot Springs, Va., 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

LaSalle Opens Baseball Season Here Today

Catholics Will Meet Paw Paw At 4 o'Clock

Game Will Be Opening of Tri-State Conference for Both Teams

The LaSalle high school baseball team will open its 1941 season here this afternoon meeting Paw Paw, W. Va., high at Community park at 4 o'clock.

Paw Paw has played three games and will probably give the Explorers plenty of trouble as they are undefeated, having trimmed the West Virginia Deaf School nine twice, 17 to 8 and 12 to 7 and nosed out Berkeley Springs 7 to 6.

Conway has been working candidates for the baseball team hard the last few days, but has had to divide his attention between two sports, baseball swimming, however with the city swimming meet now out of the way he will devote his time to the baseball team.

The LaSalle mentor has selected Bernard McGann as his starting pitcher but indicated last night that Bill "Lefty" Smith, Tommy Kilduff and John Small may be used. Ray Schmutz will be behind the plate with "Penny" Shaffer in reserve.

LaSalle will go to bat in this order. Vic Malloy will play third base and leadoff; Jim Laffey, third base will bat second. Ron Palmer will play left field and head third. Don Palmer, first base will hit fourth. Ed McGraw center field will bat fifth; Schmutz, the catcher will hit sixth. Bobby Stakem, second base will bat seventh, Jack McPartland will play right field and hit eighth with McGann, the pitcher batting ninth.

The game today will be the opening Tri-State Interscholastic game for both LaSalle and Paw Paw. Fort Hill will play Beall high in Frostburg this afternoon at 4 o'clock in another conference contest.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, April 24 (The Special News Service) — Syracuse alumni paid tribute to "The Red Demon" at a banquet tonight, and they didn't mean rum. The object of their affection is Tom Keane, Orange track coach for 35 years whose name is known and honored wherever spikes pierce cinders.

Keane's life has been wrapped up in cinders one way or another for about 52 of his nearly 69 years. When he was 17 years old he was sort of a cinder Cinderella, earning the nickname of "The Red Demon" as a sprinter for the Trimount A. C. and the Boston A.A.

From that time on track was his first love. His accomplishments at Syracuse are well known. He has turned out fine performers by the score, and although he might come up with an argument in some quarters he will insist he has tutored four quarter-milers who could compete against any four from another college. They are Charles Reidpath, Olympic 400-meter champ in 1912; Allen Woodring, Olympic 200-meter champ in 1920; Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400-meter winner in 1928, and Eddie O'Brien, member of the Olympic 1600-meter relay team in 1936.

Less is known of the background of the veteran teacher, of his own feats of feet, or foot feats, around the turn of the century. Old timers will recall him as a world professional champion, and as holder of the United States amateur title for the quarter mile.

Foot racing, both here and abroad, was big business in those days, and after Keane turned pro in 1895 he was one of the biggest businessmen. He campaigned successfully in this country for a couple of years, and then returned to England, his birthplace, to give the home folks a treat.

His success there was remarkable. He won the famed Sheffield handicap the first time out, and in five years won the event three times and finished second twice.

He brought the crouching start to the British Isles. When he lined up for the 100-yard race in the Scottish games the starter, standing by with a double-barreled shotgun, barked:

"That's no way to run. Get up on your feet and run like a mon."

Watches in those days weren't the precision instruments they are today, but the timers knew when a runner was fast. When he won the Newcastle race which gave him the world 100-yard title several watches caught him as "four yards inside evens," which apparently means under 10 flat and close to today's world record.

There was no pampering of the athletes in those days. In the Scottish games Keane competed in 26 meets in 26 consecutive days. Sometimes taking part in seven events in a day. He was proficient in the running long leap, or broad jump, and held the English pro record with a mark of twenty-two feet six inches. That doesn't seem very astonishing, but there was no pit, no runway, no nothing. Just room to run and take off on some fairly flat surface.

Keane had coached a year at Worcester Academy before going to England, and after he returned, he tutored track and football at the University of Maine, later moving on to Oberlin College in Ohio, and thence to Syracuse, where he's going strong after 35 years.

Greg Rice is greatly disapponited because cancellation of the Princeton invitation meet won't give him a whack at the two-mile record on the Palmer Stadium track this season.

Identical Trophies For Roxy Tourney

Winners and runnersup in Classes A, B and C of the Roxy Bowling Center's first annual county-wide rubber band duckpin singles tournament, to be held from May 2 to 5, inclusive, will receive identical trophies, it was announced yesterday. These six large trophies are now on display at the Roxy.

The tourney, which has already drawn the largest number of entries in duckpin history here, will open next Friday evening at 7 o'clock with appropriate ceremonies. All persons desiring to enter the tourney should enroll before midnight Saturday.

The tourney is unique in that even fair bowlers will be able to cop a championship since they will be competing against pinmen of their own calibre. This type of bowling is known as "class bowling."

Entries are divided into the following classifications: Men: Class A, 145 average or better; Class B, 125 to 145; Class C, less than 125. Women: Class A, 115 average or better; Class B, 105 to 115; and Class C, less than 105.

Friday Nighters Win

by GRANTLAND RICE

For The Pot of Gold

LEXINGTON, Ky., The eyes of all Kentuckians, between the ages of eight and ninety, are now turned towards Churchill Downs and the next big derby. So are the bewildered eyes of some 75,000 visitors from almost every state in the nation—visitors already starting the big trek.

As the most famous of all the Kentucky colonels — Edward R. Bradley—has no entry in the derby this time, Kentucky is turning more or less to Whirlaway and Our Boots which picked Kentucky for their final training.

"But it will be a tough race," an old-time Kentuckian told me, "one of the toughest. That fellow Charlie Howard is a hard one to beat when there's big money around — and he has his chance in Porter's Cap.

"Then there's King Cole, which certainly has the speed if he can go the distance. And many believe he can. And you've got to give Robert Morris a chance. I've been watching derbies for a long, long time and I can't remember the spot where so many had a chance in advance of the big day."

The veteran rambled along. "Whirlaway—Our Boots—King Cole —Porter's Cap—Robert Morris— all pretty well matched—maybe not great three-year-olds. Maybe better than the average.

"And there's always the chance," he added, "that some outsider will break through. You know, only three winter book favorites ever won this race—and they were Morvich, Reigh Count and Gallant Fox. Last spring at this time I never heard anyone even mention a horse named Gallahadion — but he was the horse that won. Something like 16 to 1, when Bimelech was supposed to be a sure thing against the field he had to beat."

Whirlaway and Stagehand

I asked Ben Jones if he didn't figure that Whirlaway's slow breaking would put him in a jam and possibly get him bumped around or shut out in a fair-sized field.

"I don't think so," Ben said. "He won't break fast enough to get in any jam. At a mile and a quarter he has plenty of distance to find his place and be ready for the stretch.

Earl Sande agrees with Jones.

"Whirlaway reminds me of Stagehand," Sande told me. "Stagehand was always off slowly, but he was a terror in the stretch. Whirlaway isn't as big a horse as Stagehand was. He can't take a bumping as well. But he isn't the type that will run into any early trouble. In riding Whirlaway you know he can move along in that last furlong. You don't have to gamble on getting him off in the middle of the field. He has speed enough to stay somewhere in striking distance, after the field is away, and that's all you need in a horse that can pick up speed down the stretch."

Split Opinions

Whirlaway from Florida and Keeneland — Porter's Cap from California and Maryland — Our Boots from Arkansas and Kentucky and —King Cole and Robert Morris from Long Island—and these are not the only entries with a chance.

You've rarely seen more split opinions. Horsemen from Texas have been wiring and writing me not to get away from Whirlaway. One of the best trainers I know figures King Cole to run first or second. Our Boots has a flock of strong supporters and so has Porter's Cap.

And there is always the chance of that outsider upsetting all the gaudy apple carts. For example, the odds were at least 50 to 1 that Dispose, winner of two big stakes in his two previous starts, wouldn't run last at Jamaica on last Saturday.

Heavy Shopping

The general angle around Lexington is that a lot of shopping around would take place on derby day. There will be at least five entries given a good chance to get by with racing luck, and there will be two or three others which might do what Gallahadion did last May.

This 1941 derby was an open race two months ago, and it is still an open race.

I recall a year ago in the press at Churchill Downs where one expert after another, with few exceptions, could see nothing but Bimelech in a one-horse race — twenty minutes before the show was on.

There will be no such solid backing when this sixty-seventh derby follows the stirring rendition of "My Old Kentucky Home." The massed multitude will be shooting in all directions, unless the next few days change the present situation considerably. Which, of course, may happen.

The Wood Memorial at Jamaica on Saturday has yet to speak its piece and tell its story. And there is always the question of the track and the weather—the size of the field—the starting position — and beyond that the indefinable angle of how a horse may happen to feel through the two minutes and a few seconds needed to write the story of the race.

Our Boots Beats Whirlaway at Keeneland

Kentucky Derby Stock Soars as Result of Race

Takes Blue Grass Stakes against Heavily Backed Favoriie

By GLENN RAMSEY

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 24 (P)—Our Boots slapped the mud in the face of Whirlaway today in winning the Blue Grass stakes at Keeneland and sent his stock soaring in the Kentucky Derby.

Whirlaway, this horse country's heavily backed favorite, sought to run it out with Mrs. R. G. Martin's star in the Blue Grass but he didn't have it after Jockey Wendell Eads ran him wide on the stretch turn.

The race was a two-horse affair although Texas' Valdina Farms sent Valdina Groom and Valdina Paul in to fill the field. The latter finished third.

Makes Fast Time

Our Boots ran the mile and an eighth, the longest distance either he or Whirlaway had run, in the swift time, considering the track condition, of 1:51:1, just one and four fifths seconds off the track record. The Kentucky derby distance is a mile and a quarter.

Mrs. Martin's speedster proved himself a thrilling mudder as well as a fast track racer by leaping into the lead from the chute and never giving Whirlaway more than a length advantage at any point.

When they moved into the back stretch Our Boots began to slowly pull away. On the turn before entering the stretch, Jockey Eads carried Whiraway from the rail and from then on it was all Our Boots.

Wins by Six Lengths

Whirlaway, Warren Wright's Calumet Farm's speedster, was doing his utmost, under the whip to come on, but Our Boots was across the finish line six lengths to the good and still going away.

It was the fifth meeting between these derby candidates and the fourth time Our Boots had outrun Whirlaway. They each carried 123 pounds. At equal weights here on October 19 last year Whirlaway was the winner. In previous meetings Whirlaway gave weight to Our Boots.

The race was worth $10,256 to Mrs. Martin and brought Our Boots' winning to $82,457. Our Boots paid $5.20 and $2.20 and Whirlaway gave his backers $2.20 with no show betting.

Fort Hill Track Squad Captures Practice Meet

Turns Back Romney and Ridgeley High Schools in Exhibition Here

Fort Hill high school's track team won an exhibition match here Wednesday from Romney and Ridgeley high school squads in a warm-up for the dual meet with Massanutten Military Academy at Woodstock, Va.

The informal affair, arranged by Coach Long to get a line on Sentinel candidates for the opening engagement, produced strong competition and some fair records considering the limited amount of training each team has had.

A check of places won by the three teams shows Fort Hill tallied 48 1-2 points, Romney 40, and Ridgeley 5 1-2. Fort Hill copped five firsts with Captain Gene Hook and Ralph Keiter each accounting for two. Two of Romney's three firsts were won by Millenson, while John Lookabaugh accounted for Ridgeley's first with a shot put toss of 40 feet, 4 inches.

Keiter won the half-mile and mile, Hook took the quarter-mile and high jump, and Clarence Minnick and Fisher, also of Fort Hill, finished in a first place tie in the pole vault. Millenson won both sprints and Ely took the discus for Romney.

Coach Long announced today that final selection of Fort Hill's squad of 10 or 12 athletes will be made today. The summary of yesterday's meet follows:

100-yard dash—Millenson, Romney, first; Sneeder, Romney, second; Hipsley, Fort Hill, third; Alkire, Romney, fourth. Time—:10.6.

880-yard run—Keiter, Fort Hill, first; McDonald, Romney, second; Schultz, Fort Hill, third. Time—2:17.

Discus throw—Ely, Romney, first; Singhass, Romney, second; Hook, Fort Hill, third. Distance—95 feet, 3 inches.

Mile run—Keiter, Fort Hill, first; Fisher, Fort Hill, second; Minnick, Fort Hill, third; Wagner, Romney, fourth. Time—5:18.

Shot put—Lookabaugh, Ridgeley, first; Singhass, Romney, second; Hook, Fort Hill, third; Lapp, Fort Hill, fourth. Distance—40 feet, four inches.

440-yard run—Hook, Fort Hill, first; Alkire, Romney, second; McDonald, Romney, third; Divico, Fort Hill, fourth. Time—56 seconds.

High jump—Hook, Fort Hill, first; Hott, Romney, second; Rowan, Fort Hill, third; Knick of Ridgeley and Hamilton of Fort Hill tied for fourth. Height—5 feet, 2 inches.

Pole vault—Fisher and Minnick of Fort Hill tied for first; Hott, Romney, third; Whitford, Romney, fourth. Height—8 feet, 10 inches.

Pigeon Racing In This Section To Open Sunday

Algonquin Registers All Birds with United States Signal Corps

MIDLAND, April 24—Pigeon racing in this section opens Sunday with twenty-two entries of The Algonquin Pigeon Club vieing for the winners' honors. The organization, affiliated with the American Racing Pigeon Union, is composed of members who live within a radius of eight miles of the lodge room in Gilmore.

Officers for the coming year are Alvin Gentry, president; Wilmoth Garlitz, first vice-president; John Seib, second vice-president; Bernard Seib, third vice-president; John Meyers, secretary; Samuel Gardner, racing secretary, and G. F. Martens, publicity agent.

Register With Signal Corps

The club proudly announces that all pigeons owned by the members have been registered with the United States Signal Corps which means that the government agency may claim any or all of the birds for breeding purposes or any other emergency. This was a volunteer move made by the club and the offer was promptly accepted by the signal corps.

In keeping with this program the general public is requested to cooperate with the club to the extent of sending the bands of any stray or injured pigeon to either John Meyers or C. F. Martens. A lost bird may have a nest of young awaiting its return. Last year was a bad year for all pigeon clubs throughout the country with many of the potential war messengers being lost.

Ten races are slated for the 1941 schedule with Sunday's race being a 100-mile event from West Union, W. Va. Nine of the races will be for older birds while one race will be for yearlings or birds born after January 1, 1940. After the 100-mile opener the schedule is as follows:

May 4, Parkersburg, W. Va., 150 miles.

May 11, Chilocothe, Ohio, 200 miles.

May 18, Cincinnati, Ohio, 300 miles.

May 25, Mitchell, Indiana, 400 miles.

June 1, Olney, Illinois, 500 miles.

June 8, Olney, Illinois, 590 miles (yearling).

June 15, St. Louis, Mo., 600 miles.

June 22, Mitchell, Indiana, 400 miles.

June 29, Kansas City, Kansas, 800 miles.

Long Race Scheduled

The Kansas City race is the longest race ever scheduled by the club and will be the feature event of the year. Each entry may enter ten birds in the old bird events. At least 200 pigeons will be forwarded to the railroad station agent at West Union Saturday for liberation early Sunday morning. As the birds return to their lofts each owner inserts the leg band of the first two arrivals in a special clock which starts the clock and records the time. A pigeon may arrive at its lofts far ahead of the rest of the field but still lose the race if the owner is unable to secure the leg band. After the winner is determined a committee, known as the "tossing" committee, visits the loft and throws the bird into the air to see if it will return to its loft. If it does not the entry is disqualified. This prevents any injury to the bird to secure the leg band.

City Softball League Meeting Will Be Held Here Tonight

All umpires of the City Softball League are expected to attend a meeting of the league tonight at 8 o'clock at the Central Y. M. C. A., at which time they will be given their assignments for the opening of the season May 5.

Cliff Fearer, president of the loop, announced yesterday that there is still an opening for another team in the league and that anyone interested should get in touch with Jim Hill, at Hill's Toy store.

So far only five teams have entered the circuit, they are Lacy's Delicatets, North End Social Club, West Side Merchants, Post's Service Station and Golden Bakers.

Neyland May Quit Coaching To Take Army Commission

Tennessee Football Mentor Reported about To Don Uniform

By HARRY P. SNYDER

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 24 (P)—Those reports that Uncle Sam's mushrooming army needs officers to train the thousands of raw selectees has University of Tennessee football fans wondering what's what with the major.

"The major" is none other than Robert Reece Neyland, a West Pointer who engineered in the army for a spell before retiring in favor of the end-run and forward pass trade and proceeding to produce entries for the orange, rose and sugar bowls on successive New Years' days.

May Don Uniform

From at least six different plains have come so-called authoritative reports that Neyland would throw away the cleated shoes and don his Sam Browne belt and gold leaf once again.

So far the reports have not carried a war department stamp and although the boys around the cigar stores are breathing easier they are still wondering what's cooking.

The last word from the major—now vacationing in Florida — was that unless the nation's armed forces are lining up for a bit of a show next fall the major will still be doing business at Shields-Watkins field.

Coach Since 1925

Neyland came to the Tennessee campus in 1925 as commandant of the ROTC and assistant grid coach. The following year saw him named head coach and except for the season of 1935, when he engineered for the army in Panama, he has been polishing up the famed Neyland system of making touchdowns and winning bowl bids.

During Neyland's absence the Vols fared none too well, so the university officials offered him sufficient inducement to place him among the army's retired officers.

Preferring not to think about what the Vols would be without Neyland, the local lads suggest anti-Tennesseans are guilty of wishful-thinking when they discuss the topic.

Wilson To Use Cavarretta as Pitcher Soon

Cub Manager Converted Walters from an Infielder to Star Hurler

By TOM SILVER

CHICAGO, April 24 (P)—Phil—Joseph Cavarretta, erstwhile "boy wonder" of the Chicago Cubs, will appear in a National League box score any day now as a pitcher after seven years of outfield and first base duty.

Manager Jimmy Wilson, who says "any guy who can throw hard has a chance to pitch," has high hopes for Phil. His protege even now is only twenty-four years old although he's starting his eighth season with the Chicago Cubs.

Wilson is the fellow who persuaded Bucky Walters to give up third base for the mound when both were with Philadelphia. That experiment worked out so well that the Cub pilot almost wished that he never had engineered it.

Walters, now a Cincinnati star, whitewashed the Cubs with five hits Wednesday, dropping Wilson's charges into fourth place.

"I think Cavarretta is about ready to pitch," Wilson said. "He's been working hard and he's strong and fast. Of course, there no telling how he'll go in a game but I'm willing to find out."

A southpaw, Cavarretta has fair control, and an average curve, but speed more than anything else. He pitched for his high school teams here when he wasn't in the outfield and was something of a sensation.

The Cubs signed him in 1934 and sent him to the Minors, recalling him before the season was over. Then only seventeen, he broke into the big time by hitting a home run which gave Guy Bush a 1-0 victory.

His best season was in 1935 when he appeared in 146 games at first base, hitting .275 and knocking in eighty-two runs.

Everybody concerned will be happy if Cavarretta delivers on the mound. The Cubs need pitching more than anything else and apparently he doesn't fit into the scheme of things in the outfield or at first base.

Feather Merchants Meet North Enders

The Feather Merchants and the North End Social and Athletic Club softball teams will play an exhibition game this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock on the North End Playground field.

Manager "Sparky" Chisholm expects to try out a new battery with Cramblitt pitching and Gil Becker catcher. Allen Sheetz, veteran twirler is also expected to see action.

We Mean They're Really
RECONDITIONED

When we say "Reconditioned" we mean our used cars are THOROUGHLY reconditioned—from bumper to bumper and road to roof—both mechanically and in appearance. We invite you or any mechanic to inspect them closely and carefully—because we know that we can prove their extra value. Compare their condition. Compare their prices. Then pick the one you want with the assurance you have a good car at the right price. Look them over.

A. Charles Stewart Opposes America Entering War

Favors Strong Aid to Britain but Would Keep Soldiers at Home

HAGERSTOWN, April 24 — Opening his campagin for election to Congress in the Sixth Maryland district, A. Charles Stewart, of Frostburg, told a large audience here tonight some of the plans in his platform and urged that Republicans work together for the success of the party.

Stewart shared speaking honors with Chester H. Gross, York, Pa., former congressman at a rally sponsored by the Young Men's Republican League of Washington county.

In speaking of his opponent in the campaign, Mrs. Katharine Edgar Bryon, Stewart said "I have never campaigned against a woman. I have never had a fight with a woman in my life and I do not propose to have one now. I will not criticize my opponent but I will say that serving in Congress at this time is a full time job and one which takes experience.

Keep Men at Home

Stewart declared that he stood wholeheartedly for the defense program, for military training and keeping the boys fit but he believed they should be kept in this country.

"It is my firm conviction," Stewart asserted, "that the American people want to keep out of this war if it is at all possible. They have repreatedly expressed their opinion that American soldiers should not be sent across the oceans to fight in foreign wars. I believe they are right about that.

"Many are gravely concerned about the question of using American naval vessels as convoys for sending aid to the Allies. I believe that if we can avoid that, we should do so because of the danger of plunging us directly into shooting war. It is to be noted in this regard, however, as reported from Washington by Mark Sullivan, that the question of convoys has now become obsolete and that other means must be taken to guarantee the delivery of our aid.

"However, I want it to be thoroughly understood that, while I am strongly in favor of helping Britain and its allies short of war, and will do everything in my power to keep this nation out of war, I believe we must all keep the welfare of our country uppermost. No man can foresee what this terrible world strife will bring about. If such circumstances should develop as to prompt a change of views on the part of the American citizenship regarding the war situation and our defense needs, I believe we should govern ourselves accordingly.

Would Work For All

"We are all patriotic American citizens and will do what we deem to be the best in the defense of our country and our liberties regardless of personal or party considerations. But we must not only do that, but we must do it at our Very Best."

The Allegany countian, in concluding, pledged if elected to work for the poor as well as the rich in a program in the interest of national welfare and advancement.

Hugh Troxell, president of the club, presided.

Local Delegation Goes to Annapolis; Hearing Postponed

A delegation of Allegany county citizens, composed of railroad men, miners and CIO representatives went to Annapolis yesterday to attend a hearing on Senate Bill 117, known as the "Anti-Sabotage Measure".

The hearing was postponed after other hearings kept Governor O'Conor busy throughout the day and evening and next Tuesday was set for the hearing.

O'Conor To Give School Bond Bill Careful Study

Two Hour Hearing on $800,000 Measure Is Held in Annapolis

The $800,000 school bond bill paseed by the recent session of the Maryland General Assembly was argued pro and con at a two hour hearing held last night in the House chambers in Annapolis, after which Governor O'Conor told an Allegany county delegation that he would give the measure a thorough study before acting upon it.

The governor after listening to three speakers urge him to veto the bill and six pleading for him to sign it, said he realized the measure was an important one or there would not be such a difference of opinion on it and that he would consider it carefully.

Night Session Held

Governor O'Connor originally had scheduled the hearing for 10 a. m. yesterday morning — but he also scheduled some forty other hearings for the same day. As a result only the pleading of State Senator Robert B. Kimble and William A. Gunter, president of the Allegany County Board of Education caused the governor to hold a night session instead of postponing the hearing until next week as he announced he would do late yesterday afternoon.

When the hearing opened last night at 8:30 o'clock Gunter was the first speaker against the bill, he was followed by Charles L. Kopp, secretary of the board of education and superintendent of Allegany county schools and by Harold W. Smith, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Speakers who spoke for the bill and urged the governor to sign it were, State Senator Robert K. Kimble; Delegate Lester Reed, sponsor of the bill; Charles M. See, chairman of the Allegany county delegation in the House of Delegates; D. Clarkson Laird, mayor of Lonaconing; Alvin Ternent also of Lonaconing and James E. Crump Mt. Savage.

The proponents said the present Mt. Savage school was a fire trap. Laird asserted the Lonaconing school also was in bad condition and had no playground. Kimble said several elementary schools had been abandoned and the pupils sent to consolidated schools. Children in the coal-mining sections needed a school of their own, he said.

Opposing the bond issue, Smith pointed out that taxes were rising under the national defense program and asserted this was no time to incur additional obligations. Kopp and Gunter said the school board was continuing its consolidation policy and that the Mt. Savage school was not included in the program. Gunter said the board realized a new building was needed at Mt. Savage, but not a high school.

Kimble said that he and the four Allegany county delegates who voted for the measure were willing to take responsibility for it and that if the people opposed it, they could defeat them at the next election. He told opponents that if the bill were signed, they could petition for a referendum on it.

Provides for Three Schools

Those attending the hearing from Allegany county were, D. Clarkson Laird, James Bradley, Alvin Ternent and Robert Marshall of Lonaconing. Emery Booth, Ellerslie. James E. Crump, Charles Sloan and Harry Poland of Mt. Savage. Delegates, Charles M. See and Lester B. Reed; State Senator Robert B. Kimble. William A. Gunter and Charles L. Kopp, representing the board of education. Harold W. Smith, Frank

Development of 'Artificial Silk' Explained to Cumberland Clubmen

Educational Director of Celanese Addresses Kiwanis and Rotary

The romance of the development of what is commonly known as the "artificial silk" industry was described here yesterday by Dr. W. E. Coughlin, educational director of the Celanese Corporation of America.

Speaking at a joint luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs at the Fort Cumberland hotel, Dr. Coughlin said the Celanese corporation occupied a unique position in the textile industry. It is not only the largest producer of cellulose acetate in the world, he explained, but it is also the only firm of its kind to produce fabrics as well as yarn.

Man's Progress Outlined

The speaker led off with a discussion of the three stages in the progress of man. First came the "appropriative" stage, in which man utilized the products of nature; second, the "adaptive," in which he fashioned new products out of old; and next, the "creative," in which he developed something not found in nature.

He illustrated by showing how man first utilized heavy ores to fashion his weapons; then extracted the metal from the ore; and finally "created" alloys by combining metals.

The textile field has just entered the "creative" stage, Dr. Coughlin said, but already the production of man-made textile fibers is greater than that of cotton and wool combined.

In discussing the development of "artificial silk," which he said was a misnomer, the speaker called attention to the irony of the fact that the man who once was called the "savior of the silk industry" turned out to be the father of the artificial silk industry, its competitor.

Luther Borror Is Held in Death of Lyle Newhouse

Keyser Man Surrenders to Sheriff after Grand Jury Returns Indictment

The long dormant case of the mystery death of Lyle "Bundy" Newhouse, of Keyser, W. Va., was brought into the limelight yesterday when Luther Borror, also of Keyser, surrendered to Lucian Radcliffe, sheriff of Allegany county.

Borror was indicted by the April grond jury for the death of Newhouse and he surrendered when his attorney, H. R. Athey, of Keyser, learned he had been named in the indictment by the grand jury.

Newhous was found dead along the Western Maryland tracks near McCoole last Thanksgiving eve by his brother Ray and Paul Johnston, of Keyser, who had been on the lookout for Newhouse that day.

A severe blow on the back of the head was given as cause of Newhouse's death.

Trial has been tentatively set for Tuesday, April 29, in circuit court.

An Italian immigrant who charges his wife refused to join him in this country as they had planned shortly after their marriage was one of four persons who filed suit for divorce in circuit court yesterday.

The immigrant is Samuel Macri, who in a bill of complaint docketed by Leslie J. Clark, attorney, says that he was married in Caulonia, Italy, April 7, 1921, and lived with his wife, Mrs. Adelina C. Macri, until May, 20, 1921. On this date, he emigrated to the United States with her consent and with the understanding that she was to follow shortly.

Desertion Is Charged

But the years passed, and despite "frequent requests and overtures," Mrs. Macri did not come over to this country, the suit says, charging "desertion" from April 19, 1925, and asking an absolute divorce. Mrs. Macri is to be notified of the suit by publication since she is still a resident of Italy.

The case is the first of its kind filed here, so far as could be learned.

In another suit, Mrs. Florence Griffiths McCoy, represented by Edward J. Ryan, attorney, seeks an absolute divorce from Robert McCoy, charging desertion. The couple was wed in Philadelphia December 27, 1919, and lived together until May 1, 1936, according to the bill of complaint, which asks that Mrs. McCoy be granted the custody of two minor children. McCoy is represented by W. Earle Cobey, attorney.

Cruelty is charged by Mrs. Anna Crossland Sherwood in a suit seeking a partial divorce from Frank Sherwood. The bill, docketed by Edward J. Ryan, attorney, asks custody of a minor child and a restraining order to prevent Sherwood from entering their Rawlings home or from molesting his wife in any way. A temporary injunction was signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster, pending a hearing.

Three Decrees Entered

Charges that her husband, Edward T. Windham, deserted her a few months after their marriage are made by Mrs. Leah Myrtle Windham in a suit for absolute divorce. Represented by J. Philip Roman, attorney, she asserts that she and Windham were wed in Frederick October 4, 1934, and lived

Steiding Refutes Charge that NYA Hinders Defense

Youth Program Not Responsible for Labor Shortage, He Says

Charges that the National Youth Administration is responsible for a labor shortage in national defense work were indignantly denied here yesterday by Western Maryland NYA officials.

The charges made by John K. Seidel, assistant state director of vocational education, who said the NYA had not urged NYA workers to attend vocational defense training courses; and Mrs. Marie Bauernschmidt, of Baltimore, executive secretary of the Public School Association, who asserted that hundreds of able-bodied youngsters, especially in the Western Maryland counties, were drawing "spending money" on NYA projects when there is a shortage of trainees for aircraft skills.

"Paid to Do Nothing"

"The boys are getting $17 a month—more spending money than they ever had before in their lives—and living comfortably at home," Mrs. Bauernschmidt said. "They aren't interested in training for industrial jobs. . . . These youngsters are paid $17 a month to do nothing."

To this criticism, Carlton C. Schuller, of Hagerstown, Western Maryland NYA area director, and E. Price Steiding, of Lonaconing, assistant area director, were quick to reply that NYA youths are required to be registered with the Maryland State Employment Service and are subject to dismissal if they refuse to accept positions offered in a private industry which pay an amount equal to or more than the NYA maximum of $16.50 monthly.

Steiding pointed out, too, that each month more than ten per cent leave NYA rolls for private employment. The total of such terminations in recent months, he listed as sixty in February, seventy-six in March and 163 so far this month.

Engaged in Defense Work

Simultaneously, it was learned that Western Maryland NYA shops were actually engaged in national defense production. Furniture for Fort George G. Meade is being made at Lonaconing and Hagerstown, and gun bolts, toggle bolts and other such items are being produced at Lonaconing for the Coast Guard.

It was indicated that similar articles would be manufactured at the new machine shop here when it opens.

Such production is done by the NYA only when private industry is unable to meet the demand, and it provides valuable training of youths for defense industries, officials said.

Concerning the accusation that the NYA had failed to co-operate in vocational defense training classes, Schuller and Steiding stated emphatically that it was not true.

NYA Co-Operates

They pointed out Congress passed a bill last fall calling for public schools to provide classes to tie in with NYA project work. The Maryland Department of Education was allotted approximately $100,000 for this program, they said.

Almost immediately, they went on, the NYA offered to co-operate with the program in every way possible, offering to provide facilities for the classes.

In January, Steiding said, he began having conferences with school officials here concerning the setting up of such classes.
